French Troops Awaiting Next Move in Crisis

Nation Prepares to Fight but Does
Not Expect to
MORE ARRESTS

Italian Campaign Seen as 'Propaganda Advance Guard'

Tunis, Tunisia.—(AP)—Armed mobile guards rushed here from Algeria patrolled the streets today while French troops throughout Tunisia were held in their barracks awaiting developments in the French-Italian crisis.

Reports from interior cities indicated various Arab and native organizations had joined with the French colony in demonstrations against Italian demands for control of Tunisia.

One person was wounded gravely and three slightly in disorders which accompanied mass demonstrations by Italians, French and Arabs in Tunis yesterday. Order was restored shortly before midnight.

The disorders brought the arrest of 10 Italians for "seditious cries" and caused France to rush three platoons of mobile guards, totaling 100 men, from Algeria to reinforce police who already patrolled all key streets.

Officials reported the situation on the Tunisian-Libyan frontier was normal.

Protests by various members of the Italian colony to French authorities over the arrest of prominent Italians were received by the officials in silence.

Among those arrested were Vetrì Licio, a member of the staff of the Italian consulate general, and Ubaldo Rey, head of the Dopolavoro society. They were charged with having attempted to start a demonstration by crying "Tunisia for us!"

PREPARED TO FIGHT
Paris.—(AP)—Sources close to Premier Daladier said today France would fight, if necessary, to defend Tunisia.

The same sources said Italy's military chances of attacking and seizing Tunisia from Libya or from the sea were "zero."

They viewed the Italian campaign for the French protectorate as simply a "propaganda advance guard" for other and more temperate demands concerning rights of Italians living in Tunisia.

Reports that Italian troops were massing in insurgent Spain near the French frontier, however, were said to be receiving the closest attention of the war ministry.

The French view appeared to be that the troop movements in Spain were concerned only with a future insurgent offensive against Catalonia.

But France took no chances. French military sources said if the reports were confirmed the defense ministry might increase Pyrenean fortifications and take additional precautions by strengthening troops in that region.

These reports, received here yesterday from the border, said 40,000 Italian troops had been massed in northern Spain.

Defends Program
In a calm session of the chamber of deputies, Finance Minister Paul Reynaud defended the economic reforms program which labor bitterly opposes and on which the Daladier government is staking its life.

Reynaud, amid cheers from the center and right, declared his policies already were bearing fruit and remarked cryptically that "important developments will occur shortly concerning the public credit of France abroad."

Usually well-informed deputies said negotiations already were underway to arrange a reduction of interest on French foreign loans. French military sources were scornful of Italy's chances of seizing Tunisia.

They pointed out that Tunisia had been the eastern outpost of

FACES HEARING

Hanover Courthouse, Va.—(AP)—William E. Dodd, Sr., former ambassador to Germany, will be given a preliminary hearing Dec. 17 in the trial justice court at Ashland, Va., on a charge of hit-and-run driving.

Dodd, who was returned here last night from his home at Round Hill, posted bond of $2,000, which was furnished by T. Justin Moore, Richmond attorney and friend of the Dodd family. The former ambassador was charged with failing to stop after his car struck and injured Gloria Grimes, 4-year-old negro child, near here Monday.

Sloan Says Slash In Taxes Would Be Help to Business

Claims It Would Increase
Productivity and Add Employment

Washington.—(AP)—Alfred P. Sloan told the senate profit-sharing committee today that a general reduction of taxes on business would stimulate greater industrial productivity, reduce prices and increase employment.

Sloan, chairman of the board of General Motors corporation, thus was in virtual agreement on this point with a previous witness and fellow auto manufacturer, Edsel Ford of the Ford Motor company.

Sloan said he believed incentive taxation could be used by the government to stimulate the use of new instruments of production, "thus creating employment in the capital goods industries which are vital in any continuing prosperity."

The committee heard from G. W. Sharpe, secretary of the Beech Nut Packing company at Canajoharie, N. Y., that incentive taxation to encourage profit-sharing might be of most benefit to those employers having low wage scales.

Fears Low Wages
Sharpe told senators studying profit-sharing plans he believed that the advantages of passing earnings on to workers were such that employers who were in a position to institute such plans needed no further incentive. He said his company's plan had minimized labor troubles and had promoted efficiency.

But if the government gave tax reductions, Sharpe said he thought there might be a tendency on the part of some employers to keep wages low and expand profit-sharing to take advantage of tax rebates.

E. W. Shineman, Beech Nut treasurer, explained his company's system of wage dividends. He said each employee is given a $3 cash bonus for each year of service. In addition, Christmas bonuses ranging up to a maximum of $100 will be given this year, he said.

Republicans Meet At Stevens Point

Assemblymen and Senators Discuss Legislative Organization

Stevens Point.—(AP)—Looking forward to the 1939 session of the state legislature which convenes next month, 66 Republican assemblymen and senators met here today to discuss legislative organization and politics in general.

The meeting got under way with a luncheon at which there was no speaking. The lawmakers then adjourned to a closed meeting, expecting to be engaged in discussion for several hours.

The name of Reuben W. Peterson of Berlin was frequently mentioned by small groups in pre-caucus conversation about the assembly speaker.

There also was talk that in line with the coalition movement, Lawrence Larson, Racine Democrat, might be chosen chief clerk of the senate, and John Storum, Wausau Democrat, chief clerk of the assembly.

Court Hears Arguments in Funds Battle

Supreme Tribunal Promises to Make Decision
'Very Expeditiously'

VOUCHERS DELAYED

Dammann Will Not Act
Until Justices Have Issued Ruling

Madison.—(AP)—The state supreme court heard arguments today on the petition of Secretary of State-elect Fred R. Zimmerman asking its intervention to prevent payment of $6,635,582 from the general fund and assured counsel it will rule "very expeditiously."

The arguments disclosed that attorneys appointed by Governor LaFollette did not intend to appeal the decision of Circuit Judge Alvin C. Reis directing Secretary of State Theodore Dammann and Treasurer Solomon Levitan to make the disbursements.

Judge Reis presided in a mandamus action brought against the two officials at the governor's request by the state emergency board which voted the allotments. He held the emergency board had acted legally.

James McPhee, Stanley, one of the Dammann-Levitan attorneys, said he did not appeal because he could conceive of no legal question not treated in circuit court and felt it was his duty to inform his clients that the case did not merit carrying it to the supreme court.

Sees No 'Bad Faith'
While making it clear that he did not charge "bad faith" on the part of the special counsel, Attorney Ward Rector, Madison, representing Zimmerman said he had not received cooperation in behalf of the secretary of state-elect.

"We did not know from day to day or from hour to hour whether these funds would be paid out without our knowledge," he said.

The filing of Zimmerman's petition, in his right as a private citizen, automatically tied the hands of Dammann and prevented the issuance of vouchers temporarily until the high court determines whether it will entertain an original action.

One of the chief contentions made by Rector was that Judge Reis had refused Zimmerman permission to become a party to the mandamus proceedings, which would have given him unquestionable right of appeal.

Judge Reis heard Zimmerman's arguments only as a "friend of the court," asserting the secretary of state-elect could not be entered as a party because he is, until January, only a citizen and not a state official and hence could not be ordered by the court to do anything.

Rector maintained this was an erroneous view of the law and be-

Says TVA Reports Not in Agreement

Wolverton Finds Data Not Identical With Figures
Sent to Congress

Washington.—(AP)—Representative Wolverton (R-N.J.) complained today that cost and rate data submitted by TVA representatives to the congressional investigating committee failed to agree with other TVA reports to congress.

He interrupted testimony by J. A. Krug, chief of TVA's power planning division, to question certain figures offered to show that TVA rates would more than return the millions invested in power production facilities.

"I spent most of last night trying to compare figures," Wolverton said. "I've had the greatest difficulty making your (Krug's) figures coincide with TVA reports to congress."

Krug, 31-year-old TVA executive, quickly offered to help explain the data.

Wolverton then wanted to know if a committee could depend on Krug's data "being official TVA figures" that would be used in the future.

"You're asking an awful lot, Mr. Wolverton," the witness replied, explaining the data was based on actual book costs of three completed TVA dams and estimates on seven other which are to be constructed.

Tavernkeeper Is Named In $10,736 Damage Suit

Fond du Lac.—(AP)—A tavernkeeper accused of having sold liquor to a person involved in an automobile accident was codefendant with his bonding company in a $10,736 damage suit on file here today.

The action was brought by Arnold Seibel, Empire township farmer, against Lyle Leach, a Fond du Lac tanner; Joseph Landerman, Empire township tavernkeeper, and the St. Paul (Minn.) Mercury Indemnity company.

The complaint charges that Seibel's car was struck March 12 by a vehicle driven by Leach and asserts that Leach was negligent as to control and management of his car, failed to yield right-of-way, and was under the influence of intoxicating liquor.

The complaint charges that Landerman violated a state law concerning liquor sales. The bonding firm was named a defendant because, the complaint asserted, it had provided Landerman's bond.

Car Strikes Bull; Boy Knocked Out; Machine Vanishes

Dick Jandrich, about 16, Hortonville, was injured by a bull yesterday afternoon, but like Ferdinand the Bull in Walt Disney's creations, this bull was not vicious at the time and never intended to hurt anybody.

Responsible for it all was a hit-and-run driver. The mishap occurred about 3:30 on Highway 45 a quarter of a mile east of Hortonville. An unidentified Illinois car was traveling west and struck the bull which was being driven along the highway with some other cattle. Jandrich was walking near the bull and was struck by the animal after it was hit by the machine. The youth suffered a cut lip and was knocked unconscious for a short time.

Fear Death Toll May Grow in Wake Of Severe Typhoon

Restoration of Communications May Reveal Added Fatalities

Manila.—(AP)—Typhoon-swept Philippine island provinces reported at least 21 dead, thousands homeless and heavy property damage today with grave concern felt that the toll of death and damage would increase as paralyzed communications were restored.

Some of the provinces had not been heard from since the 7-mile an hour storm whirled in from the Pacific yesterday and swept across the central Philippines. No word had come from Marinduque island in more than 36 hours.

Eighteen drowned or were killed by falling trees on Samar island. Albay province reported two dead and Camarines Sur province one dead.

Damage in Albay province was estimated at $400,000 and on Samar island at $300,000. The Albay province city of Legaspi, 53,000 population, was especially hard hit. Two dredge boats valued at $100,000 sank in the harbor there.

Heavy rains caused widespread floods, washed out newly-planted crops, devastated coconut plantations and drowned hundreds of domestic animals in the ravaged provinces.

As emergency crews tried to re-establish communications, government relief agencies and the Red Cross took steps to aid people in the stricken regions.

The typhoon, which passed out over the China sea after threatening the Archipelago since Monday, cut a swath 100 miles south of Manila.

Funeral Services are Held for Girl Found Slain With Farmhand

Milton Junction, Wis.—(AP)—Funeral services were held here today for Mary Cunningham, 15-year-old Milton Junction high school girl found shot to death with Curtis Hansen, 36, a farmhand.

Sheriff James Croake said he had closed his investigation of the case, accepting the coroner's report that the girl was shot to death by Hansen, who then killed himself. No inquest is planned.

Bodies of the two were found in Hansen's car, parked in a wooded area, Wednesday. Both were shot in the head. A short target rifle lay at their feet.

Croake said a growing but unrequited affection may have preyed on Hansen's mind and caused him to kill the girl because of jealousy over her interest in a high school boy whose junior class she wore.

It was established yesterday that Hansen had not lived with his father, Martin, a trapper and hunter, since his mother died about twenty-five years ago. He had lived in an orphanage at Stoughton, Wis., from 9 until 21, acquaintances said.

The father has refused to claim his body, saying it could be turned over to the University of Wisconsin School of Medicine.

WOUNDED GROCER DIES

Wausau.—(AP)—Henry W. Buttenhoff, 44, a grocer who was shot by a masked gunman in resisting a holdup last week, died of his wounds.

Nation's Business Leaders in Favor of Program to Cooperate With Government; Eden Delayed

New York.—(AP)—The men who produce and distribute the nation's goods stood committed today to a 1939 program for industry based largely on a "cooperate-with-government" plan.

The group in the National Association of Manufacturers which favored cooperation with the government won its point only after a close-drawn, behind-the-scenes struggle at the association's annual meeting.

A routine adoption of the platform discounted predictions of some delegates that a floor fight would develop, particularly on the section which called originally for changes in the national labor relations act. All such recommendations were eliminated in the platform approved.

The convention went into its last day with the nation's industrial giants awaiting the speech tonight of Anthony Eden, former British for-

State Grange Urges Changes In Labor Laws

Also Opposed to Teachers' Tenure Law in Its Present Form

CONVENTION ENDED

1939 Host City to be Determined by Executive Committee

Oshkosh.—(AP)—The Wisconsin State Grange, concluding an annual convention in which it voiced opposition to present labor law setups, left selection of a 1939 meeting site to the executive committee which continued in session here today.

At its final session last night the Grange adopted resolutions opposing the Wisconsin Teachers' tenure law in its present form; urging a delay in the inauguration of a national health program; urging continuation of the Dies committee's investigation into un-American activities, and supporting the attitude of the National Grange in opposing a federal department of education.

Regarding labor laws, the Grange recommended:

That the national labor relations act be amended to make it "fairer" to all parties concerned, through establishment of a board composed of one man representing labor, one representing the employer, and one the public.

That a law be enacted placing labor, industry and agriculture on an equal basis.

Would Change Law
The convention suggested the latter law should provide the following points:

(1) That the consumer be protected from monopolies in industry; (2) that labor laws be amended to make labor equally responsible with industry for any violations of contract; (3) that agriculture be as adequately protected as industry is and by such laws providing security for the farmer through parity of prices.

Delegates also recommended that the state legislature recognize the need of a new dairy industries building and short course dormitories at the University of Wisconsin, and also the extension of the short term course to include women students.

Decentralized Relief
The convention also urged decentralization of the administration of relief; that the state come to the aid of northern counties in administration of old age assistance; that a flat auto license fee of $5 be established, and that county elections be conducted along non-partisan lines.

Last night P. O. Peterson of Manawa, a member of the executive committee, was installed in office. W. L. Witte, chief of the state department of agriculture's division of markets, was the banquet speaker. He discussed market trends.

Members of the executive committee are: State Master Herman Hde, Neenah; Peterson; R. J. Schaefer, Greenville; Mrs. Helen Marston, Beloit; William Sefferson, Van Dyne, and Warden Miracel, Oshkosh.

6 Negro Slayers are Executed in Georgia

Reidsville, Ga.—(AP)—Six Negro murderers were put to death in the electric chair in the state prison today in the largest mass execution in Georgia's history.

The electrocutions required an hour and 21 minutes. The first of the prisoners went to the chair at 11:09 a. m., central standard time, and the executions were completed at 12:30 p. m., central standard time.

A seventh prisoner, a white man, Tom Dickerson, convicted of strangling the infant child of a daughter, was granted a last-minute reprieve.

The six Negroes who paid with their lives for slayings were: Jim Henry Williams, Charlie Rucker and Raymond Carter, convicted of slaying Police Chief C. T. Thornton of Jackson, Ga.; Arthur Perry and Arthur Mack, sentenced for slaying Charles R. Helton, Columbus, Ga., far grounds watchman, and Willie Russell, Cobb county Negro convicted of killing George W. Camp, farmer and his daughter, Mrs. Christine Pauls, near Smyrna, Ga., last October.

'Open Door' Plan Is Ended, Report

Jap Minister Aims Views
To United States And Britain

Tokio.—(AP)—A source close to the government said today that Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita had informed the United States and Great Britain the principle of the "open door" in China had vanished.

The minister was said to have spoken fully and frankly yesterday to United States Ambassador Joseph C. Grew and British Ambassador Sir Robert Leslie Craigie, leaving no doubt as to Japan's position.

The informant said his conversation contained such phraseology as "henceforth, you will be permitted to..." and "you will not be permitted to..." referring to conditions under which foreign commerce may continue in China.

Concrete questions were not touched, it was said, but Arita laid down two general principles showing Japan's line of policy. Specific questions will be determined according to these principles:

1.—The Chinese-Japanese conflict has changed the political situation in China and virtually has dismantled the nine-power pact, which among other things provided equal opportunity for all powers.

2.—Japan, Manchukuo and "new" China have become a new economic bloc, but they do not intend to exclude foreign trade.

Won't Act on Reports General Denhardt Did Not Kill Woman

Louisville, Ky.—(AP)—State Attorney General Hubert Meredith declined today to take any action on statements attributed to Dr. E. S. Garr of LaGrange that Brigadier General H. H. Denhardt did not kill the doctor's sister, Mrs. Verna Garr Taylor.

Meredith said he had talked with Dr. Garr regarding published statements quoting the LaGrange veterinarian as saying General Denhardt was not the slayer but that the doctor knew the person who "did kill her."

"There is not sufficient evidence for me to authorize any action," Meredith said.

Yesterday the attorney general said he had not determined what action he would take.

Meredith described the doctor's story as a "bit fantastic," adding Dr. Garr had written a lengthy letter about the matter and that he had discussed it later with him.

Sentence in Slaying

Hurley, Wis.—(AP)—Eino Hendrickson, 37, town of Oma farmer, was sentenced by Judge G. N. Risjord to serve a life sentence in the state prison at Waupun following his conviction on a charge of first degree murder in the slaying of Mrs. Anton Maki, 57.

Lawrence Scott, 27, of Odonah, pleaded guilty to fourth degree manslaughter after he had gone on a trial before Judge Risjord. He had first pleaded not guilty and had waived jury trial on a charge of being the driver of a car which caused the death of George Gonsaware, 53, in a highway accident Aug. 13. Scott was sentenced to serve from one to two years at Waupun.

Organization Bill Up in Next Session, Roosevelt Asserts

Loans to Small Businesses are Urged at Capital

At Least Four Groups
Of Advisers Offer Proposals

Washington.—(AP)—A high banking official disclosed today at least four groups of administration advisers are urging on President Roosevelt different ideas about what, if anything, should be done about loans to small business men.

The official, who asked his name not be used, said the ideas have simmered since last February's small business convention in Washington.

He said no one knew whether the president would do anything about the proposals. The plans and sponsors were described briefly as follows:

1. Chairman Marriner S. Eccles of the federal reserve board wants banks encouraged to make long-term business loans on easier terms by revising and consolidating under federal reserve control the whole system of bank examination, now dispersed among three agencies.

Want Credit Banks
2. Chairman William O. Douglas of the securities commission and Assistant Secretary A. A. Berle of the state department want the government to set up regional intermediate credit banks to make loans on easier terms.

3. An unidentified group of officials proposes a new federal corporation to insure capital loans made to business by banks, similar to the federal housing administration which insures real estate mortgages of banks and buildings and loan associations.

4. A group of officials in the comptroller of the currency bureau and the federal deposit insurance corporation believe the administration already has done all that is economically safe for the stimulation of loans.

The RFC has loaned about $150,000,000 to business men since February, in deals where banks refused to supply the money. Chairman Jesse Jones said yesterday the demand for business loans had decreased sharply.

THREATENED

New York.—(AP)—Swastika-symbol note, accompanied by a bullet and threatening Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia, was in the hands of postal authorities and New York police today.

"You will get this if you continue to attack the Nazi party," said the note. The mayor turned it over to Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine. The letter was mailed from Long Island city, in Queens borough. The swastika on the note was drawn in reverse from the German emblem.

President Hopes For Early Action On Waterway Plan

Convinced Project Will Benefit People on Both Sides of Border

Washington.—(AP)—President Roosevelt expressed to officials of the National Seaway council today hope for an early agreement between the Canadian and American governments for development of the proposed St. Lawrence waterway project.

"For many years," the president said, "it has been my sincere conviction that the St. Lawrence project would prove second to none in its direct contribution to the economic welfare of millions of people on both sides of the border."

"It has seemed to me a logical continuance of the cooperation between two peoples which has afforded an almost unique example of the possibility of achieving peace among nations."

The project is designed to improve navigation facilities from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic and provide for the development of electric power.

The officers of the council called on the president to present a statement of appreciation for the president's efforts in behalf of the waterway.

Fledge Cooperation
The officers assured Mr. Roosevelt of their "whole-hearted cooperation in the continued endeavor to overcome such obstructive tactics which are delaying restoration of prosperity in the country."

They referred to opposition to the waterway which they said had been "marshalled by special interests seeking to preserve their opportunity to exploit the needs of the people for their own profit."

The president's reply, issued by the White House in the form of a statement said he was more than ever convinced that fears the project would work to the disadvantage of land transportation agencies were groundless.

Removal of barriers to the full use of the St. Lawrence for navigation, the president said, "will release millions of horsepower of cheap hydro-electric energy in sections in which the rapidly growing market for power will soon overtake present sources of supply."

Failure to take advantage of this cheap power, the president contended, will tend to "cramp industrial development" and also "force the substitution of more costly power with the resulting burden on consumers of electricity."

Probers Often 'Too Far Astray,' Member Of Group Believes

Washington.—(AP)—Representative Dempsey (D-N. M.) expressed the opinion today that the house committee on un-American activities frequently had gone "too far astray."

He is a member of the group.

"We're not a muck-raking committee, and we've got a certain job to perform, but we have gone too far astray a lot of times," Dempsey said.

He mentioned as an example charges, later denied, that communism permeates some activities of the WPA theater and writers' projects, particularly in New York city.

That issue involves administration of the project, he said, and should have little place in the committee's inquiry into subversive activities.

C. O. D. Safe On a Fish Basis

Four war planes have just been bought from Italy by the Norwegian government which is to pay the price, a bit over $500,000, in codfish and when caught. Shows fine business acumen on the part of those Norse fishermen. An example well worth following, only one wonders what the man with the monthly bill would say if some debtor told him "Oh, that'll be okay. Just wait a couple of weeks and I'll go fishing for the money." He might, of course, fish successfully in the classified war-fish of the Post-Crescent.

American Nations Seeking Peace but Oppose Isolation

'Regional' Solution for Economic Problems Not Aim,' Hull Says

Lima, Peru.—(AP)—Twenty-one nations of the western hemisphere opened the eighth Pan-American conference today, to work for peace at home and against foreign aggression but without isolation from the rest of the world.

The momentous developments in Europe and Asia in the last five years, which have seen the rise of fascism, and the Japanese incursion of China, made the conference one of the most important in Pan-American history.

The delegates gathered in the Peruvian house of representatives for the inauguration of the conference had in mind economic and perhaps political steps against the authoritarian states.

But from the United States secretary of state, Cordell Hull, who headed his delegation, came the assurance the Americas did not seek to cut themselves from the rest of the world.

In a pre-conference radio address last night he declared the Americas "do not seek regional solution for economic problems" but that they "recognize the interdependence" of all nations and are eager to see their principles "adopted by all nations of the world."

Members of his delegation said the secretary meant not to turn a back on Europe and Asia but to turn and face it, with eyes aware.

His assurances were seen as directed to Argentina, wishing to retain old world ties, and against some agitation that the United States direct all its foreign trade toward Latin America.

Hull said the Americas were determined "peace shall be maintained on the American continents," that any menace against peace was "a matter of concern to all" and that the conference would seek to increase the effectiveness of "measures, adopted already to that end."

This brought from members of the United States delegation a prediction no such projects such as a new definition of the Monroe doctrine would be advanced.

The inaugural session, advancing another step the Pan-Americanism begun with Secretary of State Blaine's first conference in Washington in 1889, included only a speech by President Benavides of Peru at 6 p. m. (4 p. m. C. S. T.).

Grafted Skin Fails To Erase Nazi Brand On Refugee's Arm

Los Angeles.—(AP)—Even grafted skin has failed to erase the Nazi swastika brand on his right arm, burned there while he was in a German concentration camp, Donis Schlerman, 33, Jewish refugee, said today.

Schlerman said he was forced to leave Berlin university, where he was a professor of botany, sell his valuable home, from which he eventually received but $3, and ordered to leave the country.

Unable to get out of Germany on this small amount, Schlerman related, he was sent to a concentration camp, where he and other Jews were offered water from officers' wash basins to drink and frequently were made to get down on their knees and lick up dirt.

He was stabbed twice with a bayonet, he said, when he refused to help bury other Jews who had died in the camp, and the Nazi swastika was burned into his flesh.

Rescued by a group of American friends who had attended Berlin university, he reached New York two months ago. Living here with friends, Schlerman said he still is receiving treatment for injuries suffered in the concentration camp.

George A. Ball Testifies He Lost $54,000 on Loan

Manufacturer and Banker Is Witness in Indiana Fraud Trial

Indianapolis.—(AP)—Testimony of George A. Ball, 70-year-old Muncie glass jar manufacturer, that he lost $54,000 on a loan to the Continental Credit corporation of Winchester was in the record today of the federal court trial of five men charged with frauds totalling $1,200,000.

Ball testified yesterday he had made two loans to the corporation totalling $80,000, the largest was for $50,000, and he said he had taken as security promissory notes of firms associated with Continental.

He said the notes were secured with warehouse receipts for tobacco, beans and other merchandise.

Three of these notes, issued by the Erhart Leaf Tobacco company of Versailles, O., were backed up, Ball testified he learned later, by warehouse receipts on tobacco on which other warehouse receipts had been turned over to other persons as security on other notes.

He said $54,000 still was due on the loans.

Banks Defrauded

District Attorney Val Nolan has described the Continental corporation as the spearhead of a scheme through which banks and business houses of Indiana, Illinois, Ohio, Michigan and Kentucky were defrauded of large sums. The Erhart company is one of five firms he says worked with the credit corporation.

On trial on charges of using the mails to defraud and conspiracy to do so are John W. Moore, Sr., president, and John W. Moore, Jr., secretary-treasurer of Continental; Russell E. Wise, Union City lawyer; Kenneth P. Kimball of Lansing, Mich., president of the Kimball company, and R. S. Phillips of Toledo, treasurer of the Mineral Felt company.

Ball, who acquired control of the Van Swearingen railroad property and then sold it to New York financiers, was one of nine who testified yesterday. Most of the others were bankers. They testified they, too, were given warehouse receipts on tobacco which they found later was covered by similar receipts given others.

Given Permit to Make Improvement of $4,000

The Appleton Wire Works, 705 N. Lave street, this morning received a permit from the city building inspector to enlarge its plant by building a roof between its two buildings. Cost of the improvement is estimated at $4,000.

One of the sections to be covered by a roof is 125 feet long and 21 feet wide while another is 48 feet long and 18 feet wide. A concrete floor will be built in the areas affected. Other materials to be used in the construction include iron, glass and brick.

Arnoldussen, Albert Hahn, Bernard Verdon, Horace Pitt, Herbert Kneupple and Ray Looker. Appleton contestants were Arthur Daelke, George Stewart, Henry Kobler, Otto Daelke, Edward Ramon and Edward Nabbefeld.

TEACHER SEEKS DAMAGES FOR OUSTER

Walter Phinney (left), 25, crippled school teacher, filed suit for $1,000 at Portland, Ind., against school trustees of Redkey, Ind., charging that they broke his contract by forcing him to resign. Phinney alleged they objected to chapters of "Stars Fell on Alabama" and "A New American History," books from which he read to his pupils. At right is Attorney Clarence Benadum.

Badger Democrats Show Signs Of Life Despite Major Setback

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison.—The Democratic party of Wisconsin is showing signs of life at a season when it should be thoroughly quiet, and licking its wounds after the devastating defeat given it in the November elections.

The stimulant which is sparking the organization just now seems to be the prospect of regaining the patronage which the party's state leaders have been mourning for four years.

The state organization, according to W. D. Carroll, new head of the party central committee, is going to retrieve the advantages which it surrendered unwillingly to the Progressives at the beginning of the Roosevelt administration.

Met With Farley

Two weeks ago, it will be remembered, the leaders of Wisconsin Democrats met with James Farley, Democratic national chairman, postmaster general, and most important of all, New Deal patronage boss, in Chicago. There Carroll and his associates demanded jobs to rebuild the party for 1940.

To most people it would not seem that an organization which delivered only about 80,000 votes out of nearly a million cast a month ago can demand much in the way of reward from national headquarters.

But there is a new slant on Democratic politics, as 1940 nears. The state organization will be able to guarantee delivery of a bloc of 12 votes at the next Democratic national convention. From the manner in which boomlets by ambitious national Democratic leaders are being fashioned, it may be accepted that Wisconsin's 12 delegates will not go begging.

Carroll may succeed.

It is reported that Mr. Farley listened sympathetically at the Chicago conference. The LaFollette Progressives he was told, have been given Washington patronage long enough. They have repudiated the New Deal, and besides have themselves been repudiated by the people of Wisconsin. Now is the time for Democratic plums to be returned to their rightful owners, according to the reasoning of Carroll and his fellows.

Since it is not unreasonable to assume that the national party chairman has his eye on the 1940 convention problem, it may well be that Carroll and his friends may succeed in their quest.

Although they have not a single representative in the house of representatives or the United States, not a single man of their party in state office, only sixteen members of the assembly, and only a handful of state senators, although their state ticket got only 8 or 9 per cent of the popular vote last November, the Democratic party of Wisconsin is out for the fruits of victory.

Duck Hunter Turns Fisherman and Gets Two Big Black Bass

Dallas.—(AP)—J. E. Hamm of Denison was seated in a blind at Waterloo lake wondering why the ducks wouldn't come in when he saw a commotion in the shallow water nearby.

He discovered a 16-inch black bass was trying to swallow a 13-inch brother. The larger fish was too busy to notice him approach. He carried them to shore.

Judge A.J. Hedding Finds Mistake in State Tavern Law

Word "Brewer" Omitted From Paragraph Relating to Restrictions

Milwaukee.—(AP)—"Kept" taverns, Civil Judge A. J. Hedding asserted in an opinion handed down yesterday, are not illegal in Wisconsin because "someone slipped up" in phrasing the 1933 state law regarding tavern operations by omitting the word "brewer."

"Kept" taverns—those financed or controlled by stockholders and officers of breweries—were subjected to a John Doe investigation presided over by Judge Hedding several months ago, in which Deputy Attorney General Leo Vaudreuil questioned about 40 tavern-keepers and brewery and equipment company officers.

The 1937 legislature brought about the probe by instructing Attorney General Orlan S. Loomis to study the law and recommend methods for plugging the loopholes to the next legislature.

Judge Hedding declared that testimony of the tavern-keepers and officials had established the fact the breweries were following the "obnoxious and nefarious" practice. But it would be futile, he said, to issue warrants because the law designed to eradicate the condition was so full of loopholes.

No breweries or equipment firms were named in the opinion, in which Judge Hedding said in part: "It devolves upon me to construe section 176.17 of the statutes to determine whether the legislature by the passage of this law covered these violations. It is very clear to me that somewhere in the procedure of making this law effective some one slipped up on its phrasing."

Doesn't Include "Brewers"

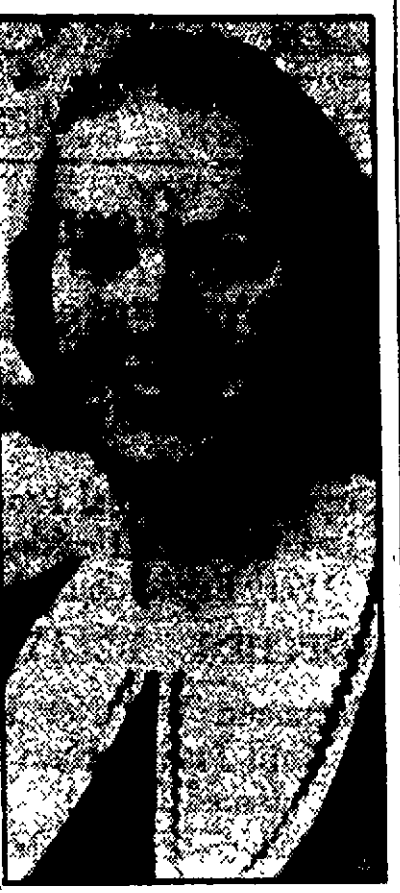

"The statute, which prohibits the practice of subsidizing taverns under the title of 'restrictions on manufacturers, rectifiers and wholesalers,' does not include the word 'brewer.' A simple amendment by adding the word 'brewer' would have put teeth into this section and would have eradicated this practice."

"These amendments are suggested to the next legislature in the hope they will carry out the intent and purpose of the law and put a stop to the nefarious and obnoxious practices as disclosed by the testimony in this inquiry. In view of this interpretation I have placed upon the law, however, there cannot be a conviction if a warrant is issued."

"The testimony developed very clearly and without contradiction that the equipment companies who furnish the taverns with fixtures are controlled and financed by the principal stockholders and officers of the brewing companies."

"It also very clearly appears that the equipment companies are not making any money and the losses are reimbursed by the stockholders, who are, of course, the stockholders of the breweries. No attempt was made by the equipment companies to engage in the business for profit."

"The equipment company stockholders maintain that the profits are shown on the books of the brewing company and in that way they are reimbursed for their losses in the equipment company. There is no question therefore about the facts."

East Is East, West Is West, So Man Goes Free

Greenfield, Mass.—(AP)—Frank Dembinski is all in favor of that east is east, west is west remark.

Frank's filling station is on the west side of the road and a district court judge ruled yesterday that, since a search warrant, used in seizing 15 gallons of whiskey, specified the east side of the road, Dembinski should have the whiskey back.

Body of Woman Found In Lake Near Racine

Racine.—(AP)—The body of a well-dressed woman of about 60 was found in Lake Michigan near the Racine Yacht club yesterday. Coroner E. B. Yanny said it had been in the water about a week. The woman's black fur coat bore the label of a Chicago store, and her garnet ring was initialed "M. J. A."

Crisler's 'Practical Football' Autographed in School Library

"With a host of good wishes and the hope that all who read any of the contents may be better in a football way, Fritz Crisler."

Written on the fly leaf of Crisler's book, "Practical Football," this is the latest autograph in the growing collection of autographed volumes in the Appleton High school library. Crisler autographed the book when he visited Appleton recently for the Chamber of Commerce football banquet.

Another prized book is the slim volume, "The Deer Come Down," by Edward Weismiller. Weismiller, a former Appleton High school student, has placed his signature just inside the cover.

The collection includes the books of four other Appleton writers. "I trust that this book may awaken many young students to a new appreciation of history and the finer qualities of the Greek genius," is the comment Albert A. Trever put above his name when he signed a copy of his "History of Ancient Civilization." "Tree Flowers" by Professor Walter E. Rogers of Lawrence college, "Through an Indian Looking Glass" by Miss Elizabeth Wilson, and "Wisconsin Lives of National Interest" by W. L. Crowe also are autographed.

Lyceum speakers who have come to the high school, too, have generously left autographed copies of their works. "To Appleton High school and Principal Herbert H. Heible with many pleasant memories of a day in Appleton. It was a real pleasure to talk to your responsive audience in the new and well-equipped auditorium. Sincerely, Alonzo Pon." This is the message which Pond left in his "Primitive Methods of Working Stone" when he came to the high school to tell of his experiences in Mammoth cave, Kentucky.

Sigmund Spaeth has signed his "Art of Enjoying Music," "Music for Everybody" and "Stories Behind the World's Great Music." "My Life with Animals" by George Morse, "Jungle Gods" by Carl von Hoffman, "Personality Pointers" by Jill Edwards and "Hamlet, the Dane" by Mona Morgan also are autographed.

Last year Dr. Victor G. Heiser signed his best seller, "The American Doctor's Odyssey," for the library. Autographed copies of Lew Starrett's "Slow Smoke" and Carl Sandburg's "Abraham Lincoln" and "Smoke and Steel" are also in the library's collection.

Charge Man With Plotting Death of His Aged Father

Arrested on Evidence of Detectives Who Posed As Gunmen

Rensselaer, Ind.—(AP)—Ralph Myers, 45-year-old odd-jobs man and one-time bank worker, weeping in the face of danger, began a real fight today against a charge he plotted the death of his 72-year-old father, George Myers, to obtain his $75,000 estate.

If convicted, he could be sentenced to 14 years in prison or fined $25 to $5,000, or both.

State police detectives Fremont Lemler of South Bend and Edward Rose of Fort Wayne said Ralph Myers had tried to hire them, while they posed as gunmen from Peoria, Ill., to slay his father, retired owner of a telephone company. They said he confessed the plot after his arrest.

But when arraigned in Jasper circuit court yesterday on a charge of conspiracy to commit murder, Myers pleaded innocent. His lawyer, George Reed, did not say on what his defense would be based.

Myers, unable to put up $5,000 bond fixed by Judge Moses Leopold, went back to jail. Attaches said he has been weeping freely in his cell. He is married and has a son in a state university.

State Policemen James Ortel and Francis Vogel of Rensselaer arrested Myers Wednesday night. The detectives said he had just turned over a $700 check to a go-between who they declared had introduced them to Myers as Illinois hoodlums willing to slay his father.

Lemler said Myers told the detectives and the go-between he wanted his father slain soon because he feared his parent might draw up a new will under which he would inherit nothing.

Seymour Club Will Have Its Christmas Party This Evening

Seymour—The Kiwanis club was entertained this week with talking pictures on "Selling as a Profession" and "Safe Driving." Essential points for success stressed in the job of selling were good personal appearance, a friendly voice, interest in the customer and enthusiasm in the work.

The picture on safety explained the hazards of driving and stressed rules to be followed to avoid accidents.

The Seymour Woman's club will hold its annual Christmas party at 7:30 this evening at the high school auditorium, instead of Dec. 12, as was planned. Colored pictures of "Christmas in Many Lands" will be shown and a talk on this subject will be given by Mrs. R. T. Jones.

SCOUTS COOPERATE IN SEAL SALE

The Boy Scouts of America know what it means to have healthy lungs and here are three of them placing a poster reminding people to buy Christmas seals the proceeds of which will be used to fight tuberculosis. The seal sale will continue until Christmas and Mrs. R. J. White, seal sale chairman, urges everyone to use the seals on all Christmas cards and packages sent out this year. The boys in the picture are Samuel Atcherson, left, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Atcherson, 209 E. North street; George Davis, right, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Davis, 620 N. Meade street; and in the center is Frank Clippinger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Clippinger, Sr., 715 E. Alton street. The boys are members of Troop 16 of the Valley Scout council. Persons who have not received seals through the mails may obtain them by calling the chairman of the seal sale. (Post-Crescent Photo)

A special musical program is being arranged.

The club is planning to remember 25 needy children for Christmas. Each member will bring a gift for the purpose. The gifts donated will be distributed before the Holidays to the children whose ages range from 1 to 14 years.

The following members of the Kiwanis club attended the divisional officers training school at Green Bay the first of the week: E. T. Hawkins, lieutenant governor-elect, who presided; Carl D. Roethig, Marvin Babbitt, M. A. Kuene and E. F. Boyden.

Charles Prosser has returned to his home after submitting to an operation at Mayo hospital, Rochester, Minn.

Today and Tomorrow

BY WALTER LITMAN

On the Way to Lima

The preliminary reports about the Pan-American Conference which opens at Lima in Peru today have perhaps given the impression that the United States has adopted a novel, undefined, but grandiose scheme, involving new and complicated commitments, some sort of ideological crusade for "democracy," and an unlimited expenditure on armaments. This is unfortunate. For while the event will definitely effect this impression, the immediate effect is to confuse public opinion here and in South America and to create unnecessary difficulties.

The fact of the matter is that there has been no enlargement of American foreign policy; on the contrary, American commitments in the outer world are today more restricted than they have been at any time in the past forty years. It was in 1898, just about forty years ago, that the United States emerged from its traditional isolation in this hemisphere to play the part of a world power. First, in Asia and then in Europe. The victory of Admiral Dewey in Manila Bay made the United States an Asiatic power; the Chinese policy of John Hay established the United States as a power on the Asiatic mainland. The American intervention of 1917, which decided the outcome of the World War, made the United States a power in European affairs, and for a decade after the war, though the United States had refused to ratify the Treaty of Versailles or to join the League of Nations, we took a leading part in the liquidation of the treaty and in the post-war reconstruction.

The period from 1898 to about 1931—from the Spanish-American War to Secretary Stimson's effort to restrain Japan in Manchuria—covers our career as a power with national commitments outside the Western Hemisphere. The period since 1932 has seen the reduction of our commitments, that is to say of the commitments we mean to defend with arms, to their original limits, to what they were throughout the nineteenth century. Thus we have granted independence to the Philippines, and as regards China we have demonstrated by our acts that we do not regard the integrity of China or the open door as a fighting matter. We have liquidated our position as an Asiatic power, and we are back where we were before 1898. We have also withdrawn from Europe, and have no commitments in Europe either by treaty or by policy.

What Remains Now is Original Policy

What remains is the original and indestructible core of all American policy; the defense of the security of the United States against invasion and against intimidation. What we call the Monroe Doctrine is simply the means by which the United States maintains its security. For Americans have always realized that if this hemisphere were opened to European imperialism as Africa, the Balkans, and the Near East have been open, we should have as our near neighbors formidable and quarrelsome great powers. We should then be entangled in their quarrels, whereas by maintaining the Monroe Doctrine, we put the width of the two great oceans between ourselves and the war-like states of Europe and Asia.

On this conception of American security all the essential principles of American foreign policy rest. Because the two oceans are our protection, we have a great navy and we do not have a great army. Because we face two oceans, we built the Panama Canal to connect them. For if we did not have the canal, we should have to have two navies instead of one navy. Only if the passage of the canal is secure, can we be secure at the same time in both oceans. Therefore, we are vitally and immediately interested in the attitude of all the countries that are within striking distance of the canal; that is to say, in the attitude of Central America, of the Caribbean Islands, and of the countries on the north coast of South America—Colombia, Venezuela, Ecuador, Peru, Brazil and in British, French and Dutch Guiana.

Since these countries are so placed that a hostile attitude could endanger the safety of the canal, we cultivate their friendship and at the same time insist upon their independence of Europe and Asia. This is the region of our most fundamental interest, and no doubt must exist in any one's mind that this interest will always be defended vigilantly and resolutely.

For the same reason, because our security is in two oceans, it has always been and must always be a cardinal principle of American foreign policy to prevent the formation of naval alliances between Asiatic and European powers. In 1922 we compelled Great Britain and Japan to dissolve their alliance, though nothing is more improbable in all the world than a war between the United States and Great Britain.

Today we see a pact, which may be or might become an alliance between Japan on one side and the Rome-Berlin axis on the other. It is not an occasion for hysterical alarm. But it is not a matter that prudent statesmanship can disregard. To prevent this pact from crystallizing unfavorably to ourselves, we shall by developing the Navy and its strategic bases and our association with the Latin-American countries, make the conception of a two-ocean alliance impracticable.

In so far as there is any confusion about our purposes at Lima, the confusion arises from speculative notions that we wish to draw the some sort of general defensive alliance, and that we wish to extend our military power beyond the strategic approaches to the canal. These notions ought to be abandoned if they are entertained and dispipated if they are not.

The project of a general alliance, whatever the form it takes, would add nothing to our security, and might very well impair it. To put the matter quite plainly, the danger point in South America is Brazil. This is the country in which disguised conquest by penetration is most tempting and most feasible. As a safeguard against this danger, a general Pan-American treaty would have no value. For the near American neighbors of Brazil, particularly the Argentine Republic, will make no promises that would be impressive and relevant, and, on the other hand, if trouble which had its origin in Europe broke out in Brazil, the interest of the Argentine would be at least as great as our own in acting against the danger. It will be wise, therefore, to avoid asking for promises, which are at such a discount in the world today, and to rely on performance actuated by vital national interests.

Vague ideals and insufficient force, rhetorical policy and armed insufficiency, have been at the root of all the disappointments and humiliations of the democratic nations. The effective answer to agitation against the United States in South America is to make very clear our won purposes, and to demonstrate our capacity to carry out those purposes. If our ambitions are understood and are trusted, if our authority is sufficient and is respected, we shall have done what is essential, and we shall have the sound foundation of peace in this hemisphere.

Clapper Scores Newspapers, Public for Picking on Jimmy

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—It didn't seem possible that the popular American sport of picking on Jimmy Roosevelt could reach a new low. But it has. A young preacher, a follower of the Lord Jesus Christ, appears as a witness before the Dies committee which is investigating un-American activities and pictures Jimmy Roosevelt as undermining true Americanism because his income tax return didn't indicate that he gave any money to the church!

Jimmy, who is showing more patience than he ought to say that he did make church contributions but did not list them for deductions from his income tax.

What business is it of a young preacher or the Dies committee or anybody else whether Jimmy Roosevelt gave money to the church or not? In 20 years of Washington reporting I have seen a vast quantity of smearing done before congressional investigating committees, but none that outdoes this job. And so far as the published accounts indicate, no member of the Dies committee raised one word of protest against this smear, which in addition to everything else that could be said about it, apparently did young Jimmy Roosevelt the additional injustice of being based on Raymond Clapper's assumption exactly contrary to the real facts.

Here in America we hold up our hands in horror at German Jew-baiting. We do our baiting on a less wholesale scale, by picking selected victims and riding them down until they drop from sheer weariness.

Jimmy Roosevelt is no longer a public official. But it doesn't seem to matter whether he is or not. He went into the insurance business before his father was even nominated for president, but he is still being hounded and crucified over that effort to make a living in the good old capitalistic way. He tried to get into Massachusetts politics but he was frozen out. He worked as one of his father's White House secretaries and that wasn't right, either.

Careless in Choosing President For Father

Now he gets a job in the motion picture industry and again he is being skinned alive by an army of editorial writers looking for a tired rabbit to chase. They won't tolerate him in public life and he seems unable to find any job in private industry that pleases him.

If Jimmy stopped working completely and lived off of his parents or his wife's folks, then he would be denounced, perhaps by the same young preacher who smeared him before the Dies committee, as a lazy, worthless playboy.

Jimmy hasn't got a chance until the pogrom is over. Anything he does will be wrong. Of course his first big mistake was in selecting for a father a man who was later to be president of the United States, and he was especially careless in choosing a Roosevelt for a father. Jimmy isn't very good on public relations. He tries hard. Nobody around Washington ever tried harder to make friends and to be agreeable to everyone. He never showed any trace of arrogance and he has taken blow after blow below the belt with the patience and resignation of Job.

Jimmy Private Citizen, Should Be Left Alone

Public officials are fair game. They must expect to take punishment, and a lot of them deserve as much or more than they get. Politics is full of phonies, fakers and stuffed-shirts and it is a safe rule to crack every head in sight because most of the time the wallop is deserved. An occasional injustice must be endured for the greater good. And while Jimmy was in the White House, he was a legitimate target for attacks, fair or unfair. That is the rule of the game.

But Jimmy Roosevelt is a private citizen and if our preacher friend is going to start in smearing private citizens for not contributing to the church, he'll have enough names to keep the Dies committee busy as

Lawrence college men next week will make their selection of the 20 most comely women on the campus in the first of three elimination rounds to determine the six coeds who will be the "beauty queens" of the 1939 Ariel, Lawrence year-book.

The beauty ballot will be held either at Tuesday or Friday convocation next week, college authorities said today. After the 20 are selected, an anonymous committee of faculty members and students will pare the list down to 12. From this number a man widely known in the entertainment world (last year it was a prominent orchestra leader) will name the six "most beautiful."

Study of Federal Incorporation May Be Made by TNEC

O'Mahoney Cites Principle That Is Gaining Favor

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—Senator O'Mahoney of Wyoming has expressed, in his speech before the National Association of Manufacturers, a principle which has slowly but surely been gaining adherents here as one of the cardinal points in any program for the reestablishment of business confidence in America.

Lawrence

The Wyoming senator, by virtue of his position as chairman of the Temporary National Economic Committee, is listened to with especial interest these days, declared that he was opposed to the "continued expansion of discretionary control over business." This strikes directly at one of the main criticisms of new legislation in recent years—the tendency of congress to delegate to commissions or bureaus certain broad functions, which, as the Wyoming senator says, is inclined to mean inevitable use of authority in accordance with "the ideas, the comprehensions and the predilections of the men exercising the power."

Such a definition of the difficulties of discretionary control of business by governmental bodies meets a responsible note among business men, yet Mr. O'Mahoney was quick to point out that the alternative is by no means self-regulation of business "without government interference." He outlined instead the necessity for specific rules "by which the practices which we all know to be wrongful shall be effectually banished."

Specific Rules

Many business men have said that it was more important to have specific rules, even though they involved extra burdens, than to have laws which were so broad in character as to keep business constantly on the anxious seat as to how the law might be interpreted in the form of bureau regulations.

To a large extent, this very differentiation between discretionary control and specific rules lies at the heart of the British legislation affecting business and industry. Take, for instance, the British Industries act, which is designed to cover the same ground as the securities and exchange law in the United States. The British act does not make broad generalizations and leave it to a bureau or commission to carry them out. In the American statute, there is a prohibition against the omission in a sales prospectus of any "material fact which may be misleading." In the British law, the things which are deemed to be material or misleading are specifically stated so that everybody knows what they are.

Federal Licenses

When it comes to amending the Sherman anti-trust laws, and that, of course, is what Senator O'Mahoney had in mind in his New York address, the question is, what approach shall be used? For a long time, the senator has been known to favor a bill requiring federal licenses or federal incorporation of business. The main objection to such a measure has come from those who have said this would mean an enlargement of discretionary control by the government, because, as a condition prerequisite to

Two C. Y. O. Groups are Organized at Meeting At Bear Creek Home

Bear Creek—A meeting of the girls of the Catholic Youth Organization of St. Mary's parish was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Flanagan Tuesday evening. A general discussion of the work of the society occurred and it was decided to have two groups—senior and junior. Officers were elected as follows: Senior group—President, Miss Margaret Flanagan; vice president, Miss Irene Brisco; secretary, Miss Eunice Babino; treasurer, Miss Kathryn Lucia.

Junior group — President, Miss Jean Long; vice president, Miss Marjorie Batten; secretary, Miss Marian Flanagan; treasurer, Miss Helen McGinty. Misses Louise and Antoinette Kant of the Clintonville organization attended the meeting.

The Bear Creek city team defeated the Tigerton city team at basketball at the high school gym Tuesday evening 25 to 23.

A meeting of the Band Booster club was held Tuesday evening at the high school. Following a business meeting the time was spent playing cards. High scores went to Mrs. Gertrude Long at bridge; Mrs. Bert Lehman, at schafkopf. The entertainment committee included Mrs. Frank Flanagan, Miss Neva Stear, Miss Marie Brisco, Mrs. W. E. Klemm, Mrs. D. D. Bechard. The party was in keeping with the Christmas season and Santa Claus was present to distribute the presents which were arranged under a pretty Christmas tree.

The following women attended: Mrs. C. M. Norder, Mrs. J. N. Bechard, Mrs. Alton Hutchinson, Mrs. F. M. Dempsey, Mrs. Gertrude Long, Mrs. M. M. McClone, Mrs. W. Tate, Mrs. C. Allen, Mrs. John Mullarkey, Miss Katherine Batten, Mrs. Pearl Johnson, Miss Margaret Dixon, Mrs.

the issuance of licenses or the granting of charters of incorporation, the government might lay down specific conditions such as in the Walsh-Healey act. In the latter statute, the government does not permit contracts to be let to any corporations unless certain labor standards are complied with.

If, therefore, federal licenses or characters are granted, the belief has been expressed that in this way discretionary control over the management of business would be attempted. To hear from the lips of the man who, together with Senator Borah of Idaho, favors a law covering the federal licensing of corporations, that it is not intended to set up a new bureaucracy to wield the power of life and death over corporations through this device is a most reassuring piece of news, and undoubtedly will tend to remove much of the opposition to the Borah-O'Mahoney licensing bill if it should emerge as the principal legislative recommendation growing out of the hearings of the temporary national economic committee.

Quotes Taft

It is significant that the Wyoming senator quoted approvingly from the message of President Taft in 1910 to congress, in which a law to provide for federal incorporation was espoused. Mr. Taft, of course, felt that the federal incorporation should be voluntary rather than compulsory, but some of the arguments he made for his proposal are being repeated as applicable to present-day conditions.

The purpose, of course, is to stimulate competition rather than suppress it, and the fact that the O'Mahoney address was made before such a large group of manufacturers may be taken to mean that federal incorporation will be among the principal subjects of discussion when once the hearings of the Temporary National Economic committee have been concluded next year.

SNOW, CHRISTMAS ARCH FALL TOGETHER

Dropping onto the E. College avenue pavement under the weight of heavy, wet snow, this string of Christmas decorations presented a sorry picture yesterday morning. In the left background is the Joslyn building, damaged when the anchor for the decorations pulled out, and on the sidewalk may be seen the debris that fell. Two other Christmas arches on the avenue fell yesterday but could be put up again. This one is all through for the winter. (Post-Crescent Photo)

PROHIBITION IN RETROSPECT

Five years ago this month Prohibition was officially deleted from our constitution. Perhaps ten years hence we will have a much more accurate conviction concerning the result but in the five years that have slipped so swiftly by we have assuredly made great progress over conditions that prevailed during the 13 years of prohibition, and where we have not gained, the evils that have developed cannot be compared in wickedness to those that blanketed the country while we experimented with the noble life.

As Prohibition was brought to a close estimates indicated that about a quarter of a million speakies operated in the country, some very flagrantly; that about the same number of stills bubbled out hard liquor in dark cellars and that an army of innumerable 200,000 men were actively engaged in distributing it; that over 150 million gallons of this liquor were sold annually to the American people; that the country's bill for this illicit, and in most instances, filthy stuff was about 4 billion a year; and that violation of law in almost every hamlet in the country was open, flagrant and unashamed.

The picture today, by way of comparison, is not a perfect Murillo by any means but it is easier upon the eyes. Last year the various governmental agencies collected approximately a billion dollars revenue upon intoxicants which went into the public treasuries. Speakeasies, stills and bootleggers have gradually faded from our scenery and the purple-faced gangsters who purveyed in specially constructed bullet-proof cars are a thing of the past because their easy source of revenue has vanished.

Deaths from alcohol have noticeably fallen but have not yet reached the level they occupied before we embraced this adventure into idealism. We are carrying over, of course, certain evils that cannot be immediately eradicated. One of these is the widespread and excessive drinking among women who before Prohibition would have been insulted to be invited into a tavern and doubly insulted to have placed before them a cocktail.

Although a great many of the claimed advantages and disadvantages of our prevailing system are still in dispute and must await further time for a sensible conclusion, Mrs. Sheppard, member of the New York State Liquor Authority, in a recent magazine article, after two years' experience in questioning social workers, municipal authorities, medical societies and labor unions, reports that "drinking among the young has declined" and that hotel men report "less drunkenness at hotel functions since repeal and little tendency among the young to over-indulge."

We cannot be satisfied in this regard until we remove from college youth one of the miserable habits they learned during Prohibition, constant indulgence in alcohol.

Moreover we find enlightened brewery organizations and important distillers working wisely for temperance in the knowledge that every drunk is a smear upon their business and that this country simply will not tolerate for long the dark spots in the liquor industry that once moved the nation to Prohibition.

Wisconsin is still backward in some important respects. If wholesalers make it their business to support malodorous taverns and try to swing their influence to protect these institutions the people will likely do as they did before, fall back upon retaliation.

There can be no doubt that prohibition was originally induced in part by the deep resentment of the public generally against the vicious partnership between the evil saloon, politics, and the important brewery or wholesaler, a combination that is forbidden by law in Wisconsin, and a law that must be enforced more rigorously if repeal is to live up to its solemn promises.

In theory Prohibition seemed sound; in practice it was a wretched flunk. We lost considerable ground in respect to decency when we embraced it but probably that may be entirely regained in another generation.

ABOUT TIME FOR PAY-AS-YOU-GO

In his recent interview with the press Mr. Roosevelt indicated that his administration was disposed to the creation of new taxes in order to pay for the huge rearmament program which he is supporting. He said that the national defense should be on "a pay-as-you-go basis."

Here, of course, the President is obviously right but the same principle should be applied to every national undertaking excepting when an expenditure is unavoidable but essential and necessary income to pay for it is clearly impossible. Even in war where money is spent like water and it is impossible to raise a sufficient amount to pay for the daily wastage and destruction our policy has always been to raise as much toward the liquidation of these crushing expenses as the country could possibly stand.

Mr. Roosevelt, we think, is fully aware of the fact that had he permitted the country to know the real cost of his past extravaganzas, each individual to find out by daily experience and computation what he had to pay toward adjusting the bill, we would never have gone as far as the recent election without repulsing the administration for its needless extravaganzas.

The November election was like a jolt to Mr. Roosevelt's jaw. It has awakened him to a realization that the people of this country, after all, are pretty practical—we think a good deal more practical than their president—and they have become extremely nervous, and properly so, over the bottles of red ink used on our national books.

In a people's government great attention should always be paid to the treasury. This was so pointedly understood by our constitutional fathers that they included in our basic instrument the provision that appropriation measures must originate in the House and this because the House, elected every two years, was expected to be closer to the people and reflect more accurately their wishes.

But a system of finance like that Mr. Roosevelt has promulgated at Washington which deludes the people into dangerous practices and then thumps on the table in front of them a crushing bill they did not expect has little in its favor excepting that it was sort of sly and rather subtle, and now it is too late to complain.

Nothing, either, in relation to finances could so certainly guard the people from excessive expenditures as the knowledge upon the part of our rulers that whatever they order by way of armament or otherwise must be shortly submitted to the people for payment, and therefore better be reasonable.

During all our history the American people have never whined at fair expenditures for the national defense. But let not our money-careless rulers think the public will be unable to distinguish between expenditures for national defense in keeping with world conditions and a mere negligent outlay made under cover of patriotism but designed as another pump primer.

THE LAST OF ARSENIC ANNA

In the Middle Ages a religious order in Italy took over the last hours of a condemned person. They waited upon him, dressed in long black masks, and although they declared their purpose was to assist in preparing his soul for the Hereafter their very appearance and ceremonies made the flesh creep and chilled the very bones to their marrow.

The little ceremony during the short walk of the condemned to the place of execution in this country is a sufficiently grisly affair. Spectators often cannot get their breath and sometimes faint. Such are the effects of approaching doom upon those implanted deeply with the imperishable instinct to live.

About a hundred years ago a book was printed in England giving in great detail just how each culprit acted on the way to the gallows and whether he passed out squirming for breath or surrendered his soul peacefully. The book was a pretty bulky affair because executions were common occurrences in those days.

But the outstanding oddity about killers was made evident in the execution of Arsenic Anna in Ohio Wednesday night—that is, the toughest and meanest murderers beg for mercy the shrillest and implore for help the loudest. If it be conceded that the death penalty is justifiable the facts in the case of this blond Borgia could not permit its dodging. We have yet to see a suitable or satisfactory explanation of how these wholesale killers can carry on their business of destruction so methodically, and, one may say, so happily and charmingly, and then crumble and wither when a much more merciful and kindly death must be faced by them.

The evidence against Arsenic Anna was what might be called a cloudburst. Although in her first two killings she exercised feline stealth and care success went to her head and her later jobs were the roughest sort of bungles. Evidence came in a downpour. It showed that she could administer poisons that painfully tore aged persons with suffering without the flicker of an eyelid, compose the features of the departed, smirkingly attend to the obsequies, and then go down and draw the deceased's account out of the bank. For some one of those shuddering reasons that make killers act stupidly Arsenic Anna started running to the bank before her victims had become their last spasms. Instead of becoming smooth and finished with practice she became crude and hurried. That was her undoing. Yet with this sordid record to the owner of which one must ascribe the full coldness of an Arctic fish she literally fades out when all hope for her own life had fled. "How could you do this to me!" she exclaimed against the governor who would not commute her sentence as though he were to blame for her predicament.

It is all a morbidly interesting and somewhat ghoully study of the twisted mental reactions of those born with or who acquire the soul of a hyena. Yet if there is anything shining about their work it is merely the deceiving embellishment of ignorance and stupidity.

DALE HARRISON'S In Old New York

New York—It is all of five years ago that Bob McGimsey, composer, Herb Davis, advertising man, and I were talking about trends in music, and Davis said: "Well live to see the day when America will dance to Spirituals." So we've lived to see it; and it was McGimsey himself who wrote the Spiritual to which America dances.

Most of the major dance bands today are playing "Shadrach," the McGimsey Spiritual that tells the Old Testament story of how King Nebuchadnezzar of the Chaldeans tossed the "three chills of the land of Israel" into a fiery furnace where the flames "couldn't even burn a hair on the head of Shadrach" and his two companions because

"De Lawd sent an Angel
With snowy-white wings
Down in the middle of the furnace.
And he talked to the chillsun."
"Hout the power of the Gospel."

McGimsey played "Shadrach" for us that day, because of his religious note none of us could have predicted that 1938 jitterbugs would be shaking their shoulders and waving their arms to its music.

For four years afterward "Shadrach" was sung in concert halls by baritone, especially John Charles Thomas. It became a part of concert stage repertoire. It was not until Nelson Eddy sang the song on a broadcast, however, that orchestra leaders sensed its Swing possibilities.

There is much more music in popular music than in songs that are classical, yet McGimsey is worried. He has just composed a new Spiritual, "Daniel in the Lion's Den," which John Charles Thomas introduced at Carnegie Hall Thanksgiving eve and which may prove even more popular than "Shadrach." The big dance band leaders telegraphed and telephoned almost frantically to McGimsey asking permission to make Swing arrangements of it. Bing Crosby asked to introduce it to the crooner public even before hearing it, for he sensed that songs of this nature are to become more and more popular.

McGimsey is not so sure that he wants "Daniel" to go jitterbug until it had had a chance to make itself firm in the hearts of concert-goers. Swing arrangements have a tendency to kill good music.

What makes the Spirituals of McGimsey adaptable to dancing is the fact that they are primarily rhythmic. McGimsey was born and raised in the "deep south"—on a Mississippi cotton plantation. He grew up among negroes and always had a deep sympathy for their music. The Spirituals he composes are his own, but they represent the view point and musical thought processes of the southern negro.

The young composer has written several songs besides "Shadrach" and "Daniel," and nearly all of them are, as he calls them, "Bible stories." Besides composing, McGimsey is an exceptional whistler, being able to whistle four-part music—a rather unbelievable talent which one has to see to appreciate; and even then one wonders if he isn't doing it with mirrors.

Song writing is so precarious and unpredictable a way to make a living, that even successful composers never know whether their songs will be popular. Teddy Powell wrote "Boots and Saddles" several years ago and had a hit on his hands before he knew it. Fearing he might get labelled a "cowboy" writer, he purposely stopped writing that sort of thing, turning his talents to other kinds of song-writing. But "The other night he was struggling to write a sophisticated number for a revue, and he was having no luck. 'I hated to waste the night,' he told me afterward, 'so I dashed off a song called 'Singing in the Saddle'—a song I had had kicking around in my head for weeks but which I didn't want to write because it was cowboy.'"

He showed it to Russ Morgan, the orchestra leader. Morgan played it a week later; and demands for the song were greater than for anything Powell has done since "Boots and Saddles."

Looking Backward

25 YEARS AGO
Friday, Dec. 12, 1913
Miss Kathryn Monahan of Appleton had been reappointed under the Democratic administration as deputy clerk for the territory of Alaska, third division, with headquarters at Valdez, Alaska.

Women's Relief Corps that afternoon presented a large flag to St. Joseph parochial school. The presentation address was made by Mrs. Leonard Merkel.

At the meeting of the Wisconsin State Grange at Rhinelander, Senator W. M. Culbertson of Medina was elected master and William Manning of Appleton as overseer.

Plans submitted by Shattuck and Hussey of Chicago for the new Y.M.C.A. building were adopted the previous night at a meeting of the building committee and directors.

Christmas trees, most of them from Center swamp, had appeared on the local market. They were selling from 20 to 60 cents, according to size and symmetry.

10 YEARS AGO

Friday, Dec. 7, 1928
A group of sportsmen at Neenah abandoned plans to organize a professional basketball team because of the apparent lack of interest.

A regular meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance union was held the previous afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. C. Nelson on Oneida street.

An audience of generous size and much enthusiasm greeted Everett Roudeshush in his first recital that year at Peabody hall Thursday evening. Roudeshush was a student of Prof. John Ross Frampton.

Officers for the coming year were elected at a meeting of the Ladies Aid society of Mt. Olive Lutheran church at the church the previous afternoon. They were Mrs. Joseph Wilhelm, president; Mrs. Frank Mueller, vice president; Mrs. Reno Doerflinger, secretary; Mrs. Armin Knoke, treasurer; Mrs. Edward Mueller, educational leader for three months.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

I WALK WITH YOU

The autumn air holds summer fragrance still;
The sky has never been so deep a blue;
And blossoms grow beside the sleeping rill,
Because I walk with you.

The tall trees whisper, and the clear sun beams
Upon the pleasant land you always knew.
I held your hand, and I am lost in dreams,
Because I walk with you.

There may be shadows when I reach the bend
To steal upon me when our walk is through—
But I can bear the journey's lonely end
Because I walk with you.

The 1,200 students who out in the Texas A. & M. college mess hall consume an average of 2,000 pounds of potatoes daily; 150 pounds of butter, 2,000 pounds of meat, 5,000 pounds of sugar, and 9,000 biscuits.

A Bystander In Washington

BY FRANKLIN GOODWIN
Washington—Immediately after the "house of Munich" American contributions to various national and relief agencies in Spain hit a peak not reached in any period since the State Department has been recording them.

Contributions sent in during October, and just now reported by the department, amounted to $175,000. The previous high level was in March and April of this year when collections each month passed $100,000.

The "affairs Munich" came in late September and early October. Although $1,000,000 has been contributed for various Spanish causes since May of 1937. By all odds the largest collector is the Medical Bureau and North American committee to aid Spanish Democracy, which reports $975,762 sent in for aid of the Loyalists during the 10 months covered. This organization also forwarded $253,000 of goods donated in lieu of cash.

Tabulated For First Time
The state department lumps the reports into one cumulative wad and so far as we know nobody ever has bothered to tabulate monthly contributions. However, we are a painstaking creature and here it is: 1937:

May	$276,830
June	108,000
July	68,000
August	26,000
September	(Lowest)
October	80,000
November	84,000
December	84,000
1938:
January	$ 78,900
February	83,000
March	144,000
April	142,000
May	68,000
June	100,000
July	92,000
August	81,000
September	94,000
October	178,000

As an average it costs about $1 for publicity and other expenses for every $3 sent to Spain.

At this point we pause to express hope the President soon will broaden his defense plan to include not only "continental" America, but the nearby islands, as well. Otherwise, who will defend New York City, most of which is situated on an offshore island in the Atlantic ocean?

Writes Political Scribe
Pronouncements of the week include that of former Sen. Watson, one-time Republican majority leader. He is writing another book, this one called "Fifty years of Indiana politics." It will be so hot, says he, they'll bar it from the mails.

He showed up at the Republican National Committee Meeting in the swanky Carlton hotel (lunch $2.50) and within 10 minutes had met every one of the 100 or more reporters waiting for the session to break up. In action the man is a marvel. He can't shake with just one hand at a time. His free hand gropes for another friend and if it doesn't find one it goes around your neck.

In ten seconds he makes you feel like an old football buddy. You never really meet the fellow because he takes you in as if you were friends of 40 years' standing. It is a technique good for modern gatherings and not for the solemn merris of Indiana in a comeback race—narrowly, however.

Ask $2,500 to Save Fishing on Lakes

Council of State Governments Makes Appeal To Legislature

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—State representatives of the Council of State Governments of the states bordering the Great Lakes will come before the state legislatures of those states this winter with proposals for uniform legislation to preserve one of the last remaining natural resources, fish. Wisconsin representatives of the Council said yesterday.

Testifying before Governor-Elect Heil's budget committee, Theodore Damman, chairman of the Wisconsin commission for interstate cooperation, and Assemblyman Charles E. Perry said that immediate action by all the interested states is imperative if the fishing industry is to be saved and the fish rescued from certain destruction.

Damman said that one of the worst problems of the fishing industry is piracy, which can only be eliminated by the adoption of parallel statutes by the lake states. Piracy is particularly prevalent on Lake Michigan because of the difference in Michigan and Wisconsin laws covering fishing operations, he said.

The Wisconsin representatives also disclosed that they are making progress toward interstate reciprocity in such matters as truck licensing and regulation, uniformity of real estate and personal property tax assessment dates to prevent tax evasion, relief regulations and other matters.

The commission asked for an appropriation of $2,500 a year to carry on its work. The group was formed last year, and consists of legislators and state administrative officers.

HUGE OPAL MINED

In 1897, New York State had 843 insane patients in hospitals for 100,000 population.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

RAMS ARE CHILDREN

In my professional youth I did apply for a commission in the army medical corps, for in those days soldiering looked pretty soft to a one-day country doctor. The army looked me over, discovered I thought Mr. Shasta was in Russia and that Napoleon spent a weekend there on his way to St. Petersburg, and decided the people back home needed me more than the army did. Perhaps I didn't hear very distinctly what the examiner whispered across the room when my good ear was plugged, but I have always heard all I needed to hear, being deaf and dumb mainly at tea parties.

Fifteen years later, the government having kept a close surveillance over my week in the interim, I was practically dragged in by the seat of my pants, a commission thrust upon me regardless of the tin ear and my abysmal ignorance of French history and American geography, for couldn't I treat the flu or dress a wound although not at all suited for service at tea parties? Yet vagrant Mr. Shasta still stuck in my crop, so when I saw marching orders coming I developed a great bellyache and was rushed off to the hospital for an operation. Good old appendix—the one and only time I ever had so much as a reasonable doubt of my own. There is a divinity that shapes our ends. With Dr. John B. Murphy, pioneer in the surgery of acute appendicitis and Dr. Reginald Fitz, pathologist who taught physicians how to diagnose the trouble in time to save the victim, we (editorially speaking) owe much to gangrenous appendicitis—it kept us out of war. Nowadays, every time we whip past now-capped Shasta we stop for a while and gaze at her cold splendor and wonder what her game was.

One of the solidly established specialties in medical practice is pediatrics—healing sick children. In the gay nineties the field embraced only well-to-do infants from the instant the cord was severed up to the time the tots entered kindergarten. Later, as more and more doctors who couldn't wouldn't or needn't make a living as honest family physicians crowded into a specialty where the pickings were better, the limits of the field were expanded to include children up to the early twenties. Still later practically all practitioners grew tired of trying to serve people on the pay-if-you-like plan and it became necessary to designate as the proper prey of the pediatrician all who were sick or well and still credulous enough to vote a straight ticket. Snobbish untutored young parents now found it necessary to contract whereby they could take the unhappy child every week or every month to the racketeer's impressively appointed office to find out just which kind of cracker or whose brand of fancy sugar to feed him and whether to let him play about with bare knees or dress him with regard for the specialist's peculiar notions about exposure to the weather.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Dilemmas
You said coffee contains caffeine, tea theine and cocoa theobromine. Please tell me what stimulant—(a cereal beverage) contains to take the place of these.
(C. & A.)

Answer—There is nothing in it of a stimulant character.
Dilemmas
Is it advisable for a tuberculous patient to have an operation for cancer of the breast? Would there be a great risk of pneumonia from the effects of ether in such a case?
(R. F.)

Answer—The operation is advisable if the tuberculosis is not too far advanced, even though there may be greater risk of pneumonia. Milk
I drink a quart of milk a day. M. told that if one has not got hardening of the arteries drinking milk will bring it on, as there is a lot of calcium in milk, and if you have it the milk will help to make it worse. (A. L. J.)

Answer—There is no ground for the notion. Most people get insufficient calcium to maintain health and longevity.

Holiday Suggestions

Christmas, the very nicest day of the year, will soon be here again. And you're planning parties not only for the great day but before and after it. With this in mind I suggest to you the following menu and holiday foods.

Intensely of color and tartness of flavor are responsible for the popularity of the cranberry at this season, particularly as a salad ingredient. Cranberries, crushed pineapple, and nuts combined with Miss Schneider's lemon gelatin makes a salad of distinction for either a buffet supper, bridge luncheon, or dinner party.

Try the new holiday choconut cake and watch your family praise it. Words alone cannot do justice to its melting tenderness, its rich chocolatey flavor, its velvety texture that stays moist and fresh for days. The filling is luscious, rich with chopped almonds and raisins, blended with orange juice. The icing is flavored with almond and is decorated with whole almonds and bitter chocolate. It is truly a gorgeous holiday cake.

THE ARMY POST MURDERS

By Virginia Hanson

here—alone. And the letter had been written on Charlie's typewriter.

I was through concealing clues. The presence of Ethel Curtis put a graver complexion on things. Something evil was stalking through these corridors tonight—something self-centered and ruthless. A personality began to take shape in my mind.

I closed the door softly behind me and crept to the head of the stairs. I could still hear her if she stirred. I could hear, too, Adam's voice below me, and could distinguish most of the questions and answers.

After a moment I recognized the other voice as Barney's—quick, high, nervous, obviously strained to the breaking point.

"We must have been near the door," I heard him say. "The entrance, I mean. I heard—I thought it was one of those balloons. She—went limp—in my arms." His voice broke, steadied. "Then I saw—there was blood on my hand..."

"Then the shot seemed to come from outside?"

"I don't know—I tell you, I thought it was a balloon."

"Do you remember a car passing?"

"I don't know—I think—no, I don't know. There may have been."

Adam was silent for a minute. When he resumed his voice was less official, more genteel.

"What kind of trouble was she in, Barney?"

"Trouble? What do you mean? What makes you think so?"

"I don't know. Even tonight—I thought she seemed—ragged."

"She drinks—drank too much. I've been telling her. She was going on the wagon—after tonight."

"Was that why you split up last spring?"

"Not—not exactly. I ached at the patience in that tortured voice."

"You heard that story about Wheeler? He was shooting off his mouth. Shaw told me the straight of it, but even then—I guess I was jealous. I thought—she might really like the fellow."

"But you changed your mind?"

"Yes—later. That was Elizabeth. She talked some sense into me."

We had been hearing a lot of theories about Elizabeth and Barney. Here at last was something that sounded authentic. If only Charlie's part could be as reasonably explained.

But the typewriter—and I had seen his eyes when he looked at her.

The Prize

"Then you've nothing to add—about that shot this afternoon?" I heard Adam ask.

"I told you I don't know anything about a shot. I dropped a light bulb and that ass Shaw thinks back and decides it was a shot."

"But we did find a bullet," Adam reminded him mildly.

"You know what I think about that. Somebody—somebody missed her the first time."

The last words were half sobbed. Surely Adam would let him go now.

He did. I heard his voice asking Barney to stay around and advising him to take care of himself. But Barney's ordeal was not ended. I heard the door open and Mrs. Flower's uncontrolled words began to flow.

"Such a dreadful thing—you poor boy! Quite like Juliet and Romeo, only of course she didn't kill herself—or did she? Juliet, I mean. I was just asking Mr. Shaw where you were. So glad you're able to be about. He didn't know about this prize; that's how he happened to mention you."

"The prize?" Barney repeated stupidly.

"Yes, for the balloon dance. My balloon was the last one on the floor—at least—well, yes I was the last one dancing. So of course, I asked Mr. Shaw about the prize and he said you'd know..."

There was an awful silence. For once even Adam must have been at a loss. Then someone began to laugh—a thin, high giggle.

"The prize?" Barney gasped shrilly and broke into another peal of that terrible laughter.

Adam said something in a low voice and the sound ceased. A door opened and closed.

"Now don't say a word," said Mrs. Flower placidly. "I quite understand and I'm not hurt. The boy's overwrought. No doubt he's forgotten what he did with it. If you see him, just tell him he can send it around tomorrow..."

Adam coughed and moved at a new set of words, but he was too late.

Helen Linley Extolls Poetry, Literary Value of Bible in Talk at Woman's Club Meeting

THE LITERARY VALUE and exquisite poetry of the Bible, which she called "the one supreme book of the world," was extolled by Mrs. Helen Linley, Milwaukee, in an address before Appleton Federated Woman's club Thursday afternoon at the club house.

Explaining to her listeners why the Bible has lived through the ages, Mrs. Linley said that those books which tell great truths are as true today as when they were written.

"Homer, Sophocles, Shakespeare and even the Bible itself will end when time ends," the speaker said, "but the love of God in the hearts of men will go on forever."

"No other book has such a strange vitality, has stirred the imagination of man as the Bible," she continued. "It has learned to speak in hundreds of languages to the hearts of men."

Mrs. Linley went on to say that there is no literature in the world comparable to the King James or authorized version, and commented on the large amount of poetry to be found there. She quoted passages from the Book of Job, Songs of Solomon, the Book of Proverbs and the Psalter, adding that next to the Lord's Prayer, the Twenty-Third Psalm which begins "The Lord is my Shepherd, I shall not want" is the best loved piece of literature in the world.

The songs and stories which center about the coming of the Christ Child are of greatest interest at this season, Mrs. Linley went on, explaining the variations in the Christmas story as told by Matthew and Luke.

Officers of Aid Society Are Elected

MRS. WILLIAM SOMMERFIELD is the new president of St. Matthew Ladies Aid society who was elected at a meeting Thursday afternoon at the church. Other officers are Mrs. Gordon Ratzman, vice president; Mrs. Carl Meertz, secretary, and Mrs. Arthur Peters who was re-elected treasurer.

The committee for the social hour yesterday included Mrs. B. J. Zuehlke, Mrs. R. H. Wuerger, Mrs. Helen Wengenke and Mrs. Irving Winterfeldt.

Like First Christmas

In conclusion Mrs. Linley said that the world today is strangely like that of the first Christmas. Then it was bleak, desolate, with a ruthless tyrant, Herod, ruling over it, and today it is strife-torn and threatened by guns and gases, she said yet there is this difference today, that all through the years "there has been a little band of people who believed that the lamp lit by the Galilean is still burning."

"Peace will never come to pass," she added, "until people believe in the Prince of Peace."

Mrs. Linley said that it is pathetic to read Jewish poetry right now in the light of present circumstances, yet we should stop and consider our debt to this race.

"The Jew sought and found God," she stated.

Sing Carols

Preceding Mrs. Linley's address, the club chorus sang Christmas carols. Tea was served afterwards with Mrs. A. B. Fisher and Mrs. F. J. Leonard pouring. The committee in charge included Mrs. A. F. Zuehlke, chairman; Mrs. A. B. Fisher, Mrs. W. H. Krick, Mrs. Fred Russler and Mrs. George Wiese.

Mrs. E. V. Werner, district president of the eighth district federation, conducted a district board meeting yesterday at Green Bay at which finances and departmental work were discussed. Others who attended from Appleton were Mrs. James B. Wag, Mrs. George R. Wettengel, Mrs. L. J. Marshall and Mrs. L. M. Schindler, all members of the board. Today Mrs. Werner and Mrs. Wettengel are attending a meeting of the Two Rivers club at which Mrs. Wettengel will speak at a round table discussion on adult education.

Jewish Charities Will Hold Dinner

Final arrangements for the United Jewish Charities dinner, one of the major activities of Montefiore Ladies Aid society for the year, to be held at 5:30 Sunday night in the social center of Moses Montefiore synagogue, were made at a meeting of the society Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. George Block, W. Wisconsin avenue. There will be a speaker and a large delegation of out-of-town visitors is expected from Green Bay, Oshkosh, Manitowish and Neenah-Menasha. There will be service at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon in the synagogue preceding the dinner.

The members voted Wednesday to send a donation to Youth Aliyah for taking a refugee child out of Germany and into Palestine.

Mrs. Sam Sigman, Mrs. F. J. Wolf and Mrs. John Alpert will sponsor a benefit bridge party the evening of Jan. 18 at the social center.

HEAVY SNOW 'PACKS' SO APPLETON YOUNGSTERS HAVE BIG DAY

The first real honest-to-goodness snowfall of the season yesterday brought out the youngsters in droves to try out sleds and roll up snow men. A group of them gathered on the lawn of the Elmer Root residence, 1050 E. Nevada street, to join little Elizabeth Root, shown in the center astride a large snowball, for a bit of fun before the weather man might change his mind and melt the snow away. At the extreme left, Judy Dixon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Dixon, sits complacently on a huge block of snow on the sled being pulled by John Yule, extreme right, son of Mr. and Mrs. Byron Yule, while George Cameron, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. George Cameron, second from left, and Jackie Grist, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Grist, second from right, help to build a snow man. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Mrs. Schweitzer Will Describe Missionary Problems in Africa

A TRAINED nurse who went with her husband to Lambarene, in French Equatorial Africa, in 1913 to do medical missionary work, Mrs. Albert Schweitzer will speak about this work in an illustrated lecture at 4:30 Sunday afternoon at First Congregational church.

Her duties on the field were to look after the severe cases, superintend the linen and bandages, keep the surgical instruments in proper condition, make all preparations for operations, administer anaesthetics and manage the work of an African household. Her health eventually suffered to such an extent that she was forced to return to her native Alsace-Lorraine, and she now does her part by giving lectures for the benefit of her husband's work.

Dr. Albert Schweitzer was born in upper Alsace. He was graduated from the University of Strasbourg where he earned the degrees of doctor of theology. When he first went out to Lambarene, his equipment had to be carted a long distance in native dugout canoes. He first began treating the patients in the open air, later moving to an abandoned chicken house for his first enclosed operating room. Following his belief that "where suffering exists in the world, it is the plain duty of anyone who can to do something about it," he treated the natives for such illnesses as malaria, leprosy, sleeping sickness, dysentery, frambosia, phagedenic ulcers, pneumonia, heart disease, hernia and elephantiasis tumors.

He is not only a doctor, but also a scientist, philosopher, theologian, organist, authority on and editor of the music of Bach, a missionary and a manual laborer. He has provided funds in part for his work by giving organ recitals in Europe and by the sale of his great book on Johann Sebastian Bach which has been translated into six languages.

Books which have been translated into English include "On the Edge of the Primeval Forest," "The Decay and Restoration of Civilization," "Civilization and Ethics," "The Quest of the Historical Jesus," "Paul and His Interpreters," "J. S. Bach," "J. S. Bach's Organ-Works," "The Mystery of the Kingdom of God," "Christianity and the Religions of the World," "Memoirs of Childhood and Youth," "The Forest Hospital at Lambarene," "The Mysticism of Paul the Apostle" and "Out of My Life and Thought."

200 School Girls Join Junior Orchestra Group

Approximately 200 girls of Appleton High school have signed for Junior Orchestra, a modern dance group now being organized. According to Miss Eileen Hammerberg, physical education instructor, the work will begin with a study of basic rhythms and gradually develop into modern dancing. Orchestra, a relatively new phase of physical education work in the high schools, is particularly valuable in the attainment of poise and grace, since it is an artistic medium of expression.

Jeanne Foote Selected to Represent High School in Valley Declamatory Recital

BY ENOLA BRANDT
JEANNE Foote was selected from a group of five girls participating in the Valley Declamatory recital last night to represent Appleton High school in the Fox River Valley conference declamatory recital Wednesday evening.

Appleton High school will be host to other schools in the conference in the new auditorium on Wednesday. A reception for students participating, coaches and former judges of declamation will be held in the early American room after the recital.

Poised and self-assured, the five senior girls entertained an audience of 400 in the fourteenth declamatory recital. This year for the second time there was no official judging and no official prizes were awarded.

Mature Presentation
"Faith" by Ruth Kane was Miss Foote's presentation. The central characters were a writer, condemned to life imprisonment, and a man who came back from the dead to give her the faith to go on believing and writing. The dramatic situation was handled in a restrained and mature fashion.

Berenice Bleick's reading, "Peggy" by Rachel Crothers, had as its chief character the actress, Peggy, who was asked to relinquish her small stepson to his relatives of "quality." Miss Bleick conveyed to her audience the warm impulsiveness of Peggy as well as the boyish naivete of Danny, the young son. In contrast to Miss Bleick's reading, Joan Sigl's presentation from George Bernard Shaw's "Saint Joan" was full of the vigor of military life. Her declamation presented in kaleidoscopic fashion the life of the Maid of France from her first pleas for an army to her death at the stake.

'Victoria Regina'
Jeanne Niemeyer offered four scenes from Lawrence Hausman's currently popular "Victoria Regina." She succeeded well in capturing the artlessness as well as the firm dignity of the young Victoria. Virginia Gorrow's reading, "The Show Must Go On," by Ann Fuller, had for its central theme the lesson of 'fooling them' which Coco, the clown, taught his young son. The pathos of the story was sympathetically presented.

A string ensemble composed of Edwarda Abel, Ellen Mae Arnold, Annabelle Duggan, Norman Eckert, Eleanor Freude and John Trautmann, and a string trio, David Bliss, Doris Werner and Barbara Small, entertained between numbers. H. H. Helble, principal, presided and presented the speech awards. The cuttings and coaching were the work of Miss Ruth McKennan, speech instructor.

Following the recital, Curtin Call, the high school dramatic society, served punch and cookies in the early American room for participants, parents, teachers, George Dams, sponsor and former contest judges.

UTA HAGEN MARRIED IN NEW YORK

Wisconsin has followed with a great deal of interest the theatrical career of Uta Hagen, above, daughter of Prof. Oskar Hagen, head of the University of Wisconsin art history department, and the announcement of her marriage Thursday at New York to Jose Vicente Ferrer, young New York actor, is occasioning an equal interest. Miss Hagen is appearing now in "The Sea Gull" with Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne and will be with the company when it presents the play in January in Milwaukee and Chicago. Her father's teaching duties kept him from attending the wedding yesterday, but he will go east to spend Christmas with his daughter and new son-in-law.

Over 200 persons witnessed the presentation of the Christmas play, "The Wondrous Hour" by Josephine Howe, given by the Dramatic club of First Congregational church last night at the church. Mrs. Lawrence Burley was director and Miss Adelaide Ingraham assistant.

Dr. John B. Hanna, pastor, led the prayer and scripture lesson, and La Vahn Maesch was organist. Those who took part were Aslyre Hammer, Beverly Olson, Bernice Jackson, Verne Prink, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Schappek, Mary Branden-

CHRISTMAS APPETIZERS
Christmas dinner starters: Clam and tomato juice cocktail (equal portions) pepped up with a dash of lemon juice, salt, pepper and Worcestershire sauce, served very cold, or avocado pear halves stuffed with a frozen mixture of crushed pineapple, cream cheese and pimento-stuffed olives. Pass French dressing.

CRUNCHY PUDDING
For a novel pudding, try adding half a cup of crushed macaroon crumbs to a cup and a half of lemon sauce. The macaroons give a desired "crunch."

Play Will be Presented at Club Dinner

LAWRENCE COLLEGE faculty members and their wives are busy making final arrangements for the Campus club's annual Christmas dinner, scheduled for Saturday evening at Russell Sage hall. Rehearsing the original play which is a traditional part of Campus club Christmas parties, preparing copies of the Christmas carols which will be sung and planning holiday decorations, several committees have been working under the direction of Mrs. Donald Du Shane, president of the club. The dinner committee is composed of Mrs. Lawrence Towle, chairman, Miss Edith Mattson, Miss Anne Jones and Miss Rebecca Briggs. Mrs. F. Theodore Cloak is program chairman, and Marshall Hulbert and Mrs. Ralph Watts will be in charge of carol singing.

A Christmas program and social hour are being arranged for the Delta Gamma alumnae meeting at 7:30 Monday night in the chapter rooms on N. Drew street. There also will be a business session. Mrs. Donald White is planning the social part of the evening, and Miss Adela Klumb, the program.

Mrs. William Keller entertained her bridge club Thursday night at her home on N. Division street. Christmas gifts were presented to each member of the club, and Mrs. Frank Courchane won the traveling prize at bridge. The club is planning a progressive Christmas party for Dec. 28, at which time Mrs. R. Mayrand, 1314 N. Clark street, will be hostess.

Miss Lila Radtke, 628 N. Fair street, was hostess to the T.N.T. Bridge club Thursday night. Prizes at bridge were awarded to Miss Lucille Lillge and Mrs. Arnold Hillman, the latter a guest. The club will have a Christmas party next Thursday night at the Hearstone Tea room.

The Chatterbox schafskopf club met Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Fred Densch, Lawe street, Kaukauna. Mrs. William Horn and Mrs. Densch won prizes and others present were Mrs. Ernest Kranzsch, Mrs. Ray Paeth, Mrs. Ervin La Budde, Mrs. Emil Helms, Mrs. John Baker and Mrs. Carl Hassell. Next Friday Mrs. La Budde, 715 S. Locust street, will be hostess, and there will be a Christmas party Dec. 29 at the Copper Kettle restaurant.

IN THE SOUP
New Soup garnish: Spread inch-thick slices of white bread (without the crusts) with equal parts of butter and yellow cream cheese to which has been added a little minced onion and parsley. Put the bread on a baking sheet and cut into half-inch squares. Toast until well browned, stirring with a fork several times to allow even browning. Add a dash of salt and pass in a bowl.

BRANDY SAUCE
If you want to make brandy sauce, substitute one-fourth of a cup of brandy for the amount of liquid called for in the recipe. But add the brandy after the sauce has been cooked. Mix well and serve hot or cold.

RUSTIC FURNITURE
To keep rustic, outdoor furniture in good condition, wash it, dry it thoroughly, then give it a thin coat of shellac. Wrap it in papers before storing in attic or basement. This treatment not only will improve the looks of the furniture but also will lengthen its wearing qualities.

Jewelry May be Solution to Christmas Shopping Problem

BY NELL CHAMBERLAIN
If you are sure you've found the "one girl in the world" and have decided that it's about time you were doing something about it, your Christmas gift problem is solved, for you'll see to it that a diamond solitaire winks a cheery greeting to her from its satin-lined box on Christmas morning. However, if you're still in that wavering stage and would like to remain rather non-committal, or if you have already placed a diamond on the proper finger and want to give further testimony of your affection in a rather substantial way, there is a wide selection of gifts in watches, dinner rings, necklaces and other jewelry which are overflowing in their show-cases just waiting for you to buy them.

There are wrist watches in various styles and prices, ranging from the plain ones which are suitable for office and daily use to the more elaborate jeweled ones for parties and evening wear. For those who like novelties, there are the little ball watches worn on ribbons or cords around the neck, and fob watches which can be tucked into the breast pocket.

If you are looking for a gift for a friend or relative and have a limited budget for Christmas you may find just the thing on the costume jewelry counter which is gleaming with those lovely heavy lockets, necklaces, clips and pins which the new styles in dresses have brought into favor. Bracelets dangle with tokens of every design find favor with the younger crowd who like novelties. One, tricky number, has miniature reproductions of national magazine covers.

Heavy Lockets
The heavy lockets suspended on slender chains are attractive with high necked frocks and may be found in old gold or silver finish or in cameo design. Chunky jewelry of all kinds is in vogue this season, breast pins and clips following the trend. A short choker necklace of heavy twisted metal is smart looking.

Pins and necklaces in simulated jeweled design are new this year, large clusters of stones in the popular Florentine shades dangling from chains or forming heavy bracelets or pins. They come in a

Duffy Says He'll Resume Practice

Would Take Federal Judgeship but Wants One in Wisconsin

Washington—(AP)—Senator Duffy (D-Wis.) said after a White House visit yesterday he thought the only hope for Wisconsin's Progressive party was to "come into the Democratic party and help us to keep it a liberal party."

Duffy, who was defeated for reelection by Alexander Wiley, a Republican, said he had discussed the Wisconsin situation and politics with the president.

Asked about Progressive party prospects, he said he thought the party "certainly has no place to go."

and that it was "without thinking," if the party thought it had "any chance in the national picture." Reporters recalled the senator had been mentioned as a successor to Paul V. McNutt as Assistant high commissioner to the Philippines. Duffy said that possibility had been mentioned but he had never done anything about it, never asked for the position and had not mentioned it to the president.

He said he also had been mentioned as a possible federal judge but that he did not want a judgeship in Washington and that there was no opening in Wisconsin.

"I think I'll go back and start practicing law," he said. "I got four children to send through college."

Paris—(AP)—Many of the new leather belts close with a leather thing tied in a small, neat bow. Vera Borel is using inch-wide leather belts that go twice around the waist and then tie. Double chic is achieved when the idea is repeated at the neck. A sports dress in wine red wool is "belted" twice around at neck and waist, with wine red leather.

Jury Finds Driver Was Not at Fault In Fatal Accident

Edwin Boettcher Absolved Of Blame in Death Of Pedestrian

Edwin Boettcher, route 2, Appleton, was absolved by a coroner's jury yesterday afternoon at the courthouse of blame in the accidental death of Peter Starfeldt, route 3, Appleton, who was killed when struck by Boettcher's car Nov. 20 on County Trunk E north of Appleton.

The jury found that Starfeldt "came to his death by a car driven by Edwin Boettcher whose vision was retarded by the lights of oncoming traffic. We find no negligence on the part of Mr. Boettcher."

Boettcher testified that he tilted his lights when he noticed some oncoming traffic and that he did not see Starfeldt until after his car struck the man. Boettcher's companion, Erick Luebke, Grand Chute also testified he did not see Starfeldt until after he was struck.

Genevieve Powers, route 3, Appleton, who was traveling in the opposite direction of Boettcher, said she saw the man walking along the road, and that another car started to pass her machine about the moment that Starfeldt was struck.

Dr. Stephan Konz said that Starfeldt's death was caused by a skull fracture. Ronald Decker, county traffic officer, testified as to measurements and the condition of the car following the accident.

City Crew Cleans Up Streets; More Snow Is Predicted

Cloudy and Milder Tomorrow, Weather Bureau Reports

Mild temperatures mixed with yesterday's snowfall left streets and sidewalks in Appleton sloppy today as municipal and private snow shovellers went to work cleaning up.

The street department sent out a snow removal crew for the first time this year. Thirty men concentrated on the principal streets in the city today, shoveling snow onto trucks. Two graders were in operation. And throughout the city, residents scraped off sidewalks around their homes.

Today's overcast skies will linger tomorrow, the Milwaukee bureau reported, and more snow, with still milder temperatures is due. At 12:30 this afternoon the thermometer at the Post-Crescent registered 35 degrees.

During the 24-hour period ended at 9 o'clock this morning, precipitation in the city measured .74 inch, the Wisconsin Michigan Power company reported. Highest reading during the period was 33 and the lowest 31.

Variety of Weather

The middle west weather map was spotted with a wide variety of weather today, according to the Associated Press.

In the Ohio river valley, rain and some snow was falling; in the southern plains region, skies were clear and the weather fair, while to the north snow was forecast to follow cloudiness.

Forecasters J. R. Lloyd of Chicago said the snow would move eastward from the Dakotas and Minnesota across Wisconsin and into northern Illinois and northwest Indiana by tomorrow afternoon. The snow was expected to change to rain by the time it reached Chicago.

Temperatures generally were mild.

Los Angeles, with 92, and Duluth, with 12 above, were the hottest and coldest cities respectively in the nation yesterday.

It Is Said--

That Assistant Fire Chief John McLaughlin won't have any snow problem at his home this winter if an experiment with a small rotary plow is successful. The machine was tried out this morning but some difficulty was encountered because the snow was unusually wet and heavy. A small plow operates with a 3-horse power motor. John, however, was reluctant to discuss the details of his machine.

Confessed Killer Is Called Thrill-Seeker

Oakland, Calif. (AP)—Police Lieut. L. M. Carroll today labeled Rodney Greig, 21-year-old confessed killer, "a sadist looking for a new thrill" and said "he found it by plunging a knife into Leona Vlught's body."

A keen hunting knife, plunged deep into her breast, killed 19-year-old Leona Wednesday as she kept a "lover's lane" tryst with Greig. Her father, Leonard Vlught, swore out a murder complaint against the railway clerk.

TREES, BUSHES TAKE ON NEW DRESS IN 'STICKY' SNOW STORM

"This would be a fine snowstorm for Christmas eve," a woman shopper was heard to say on College avenue yesterday morning as a wet, sticky snow settled down, clinging to trees, bushes and buildings. The above picture taken of the Lawrence college library seems to bear out the shopper's remark. The trees and bushes of the campus in the foreground are covered with white. Motorists were hampered by the heavy snow which stuck like adhesive tape to windshields and stopped wipers. Despite the trouble it was giving, the snow was welcomed by residents looking forward to a white Christmas. (Post-Crescent Photo)

France since 1883 and, as such, had long been well-protected.

On the other hand, Italy's aiding colony of Libya was said by French military experts to be particularly vulnerable from Tunisia.

Rome (AP)—Demonstrations against France continued today, and diplomatic circles predicted they might lead to a formal Italian demand for "concession" in French Tunisia.

Twelve hundred Rome students marched through the streets, cried for Premier Mussolini to appear on the Piazza Venezia balcony, and when he did not, marched away in two columns shouting "forward, Italy" and demands for French territories.

Several of the students were arrested for encounters with police who barred the streets to the French embassy. They were later released.

Four thousand students, of every age from the elementary schools to the university, went toward the French consulate at Naples, but the streets there likewise were blocked by police.

More than 1,000 students took part in the anti-French demonstration at Milan, where a heavy guard surrounded the French consulate.

Rome newspapers called the situation in French Tunisia "ever more serious," said "dozens of Italians had been arrested" and asserted the native population kept aloof from the tumult.

There were demonstrations last night on the Italian mainland, the island of Sardinia, and in Tripoli, city of the Italian African possession, Libya.

Hendaye, France (At the Spanish Frontier) (AP)—Insurgent sources indicated today that a movement of Italian troops to a point just south of the French-Spanish border was a part of preparations for an offensive against Catalonia.

Without confirming border reports that 10,000 Italians were concentrated at Logrono alone, these sources said the French had no cause for alarm.

Head of D. A. R. Urges Move for 'Revival of Americanism' to Put End to Subversive Activities

Washington (AP)—The national head of the Daughters of the American Revolution urged a house committee today to recommend "a revival of Americanism" to combat subversive activities but advanced a six-point program for more immediate action.

Mrs. Henry M. Robert, Jr., president-general of the society, told the house committee investigating un-Americanism that efforts to check subversive groups "must show to the American people that they have for years enjoyed more privileges than can be obtained under other systems through years to come."

Later, Theodore Graebner, professor of philosophy at Concordia Theological seminary, St. Louis, told the committee that United States recognition of Russia had become an "entering wedge" for communist preaching in universities, colleges, churches, papers, and magazines.

For Immediate Campaign

Mrs. Robert recommended an immediate campaign by the United States Office of Education, directed primarily toward the youth of the nation, to spread the "real meaning of America and with concrete reasons why life in this nation, even with all its imperfections, is more satisfying than elsewhere."

Other recommendations in the emergency program advocated by Mrs. Robert included support for the proposal by Chairman Dies (D-Texas) to require incorporated political organizations to file annual reports with congress, declaration of the Communist party as outside the definition of an American political party and that it "be known for what it is, a dues-paying society under a program dictated by the Third Internationale in Moscow."

The witness also recommended that aliens ineligible for permanent residence in this country because of their political beliefs "be denied visas for speaking tours for the promotion of propaganda," deportation of aliens attempting to break down American institutions, and annual registration of all aliens.

forces of the government. He emphasized, however, that he was going to ask for an additional appropriation to meet a situation that had been by no means ended by the recent spy trial in New York.

The president said at his press conference that no OGPU or secret police was needed to watch the American people but that the nation does need to have its own people watch the secret police of other nations.

Declining to disclose details of how coordination of intelligence units have been worked out, Mr. Roosevelt said if stories were published on the various steps it would destroy 90 per cent of the effectiveness of the setups. He added, however, that a great many agencies were involved.

The president's discussion of the spy problem developed from a question concerning a conference he had yesterday with Lamar Hardy, federal district attorney for Manhattan, who obtained conviction of three individuals in New York on spy charges.

Hardy to Retire

Mr. Roosevelt said they had discussed the whole spy situation, with emphasis on what already had been done.

The chief executive said Hardy had repeated what he had been saying for a year—that for personal reasons he wished to resign as district attorney. The president added that Hardy would retire some time in January.

Mr. Roosevelt described as a perfectly amazing job Hardy's handling of the spy trial in New York. He said it was easy for a district attorney to spend his time trying petty criminals but it much more difficult to handle such criminal problems as spying.

Karl Mathie, 72, Former Lawrence Trustee, Is Dead

Widely Known Wisconsin Industrialist Dies In West

Karl Mathie, 72, Lawrence graduate and former trustee, widely known Wisconsin industrialist, and in 1922 a candidate for the nomination for governor on the Democratic ticket, died unexpectedly at Los Angeles today of heart disease, the Associated Press reported.

Mr. Mathie went to Los Angeles a week ago from his home at Wausau. Mr. Mathie, born in Wausau, was graduated from Lawrence college in 1891 and studied for a year at Harvard. He was assistant pastor of the First Congregational church in Appleton for two years and a trustee of Lawrence college from 1909 to 1934.

He served as superintendent of schools at Wausau for nine years and in various offices in the Wisconsin Education association. In 1932, 10 years after he was a candidate for Democratic nomination as governor, he sought the Democratic nomination for a seat in congress from the Seventh congressional district.

Active in the early days of the state's paper making industry, Mr. Mathie was one of the organizers of the Marathon Paper Mills company of Rothschild and the Mosinee Paper Mills company at Mosinee. He was a thirty-second degree Mason, Rotarian, and a prominent member of the Universalist church. He preached for a year at a church in Miami, Fla.

Survivors are the widow; two daughters, Mrs. Earl Tippet, Milwaukee; Mrs. James Bell, New Rochelle, N. Y.; five grandchildren.

Mrs. Mathie will accompany the body to Wausau, arriving early next week. Funeral services will be held at the First Universalist church there.

Since lambs and sheep are easily dressed, it is possible to have this good fresh meat often on the farm.

Weyauwega Takes Steps to Become Fourth Class City

Village to Elect Mayor, Six Aldermen Next April

Weyauwega — Weyauwega will change from the village to a city form of government next April when election of a mayor and six aldermen will take place. Provision for the change was made in a resolution adopted by the village board this week. A city charter for a fourth class city will be secured after the election. The city will be divided into three wards.

The first step towards incorporation as a city was taken by the village recently with the taking of the census. Weyauwega was incorporated as a village in 1886 and it will be the fourth city in Waupaca county.

Among the advantages gained through the change will be additional representation on the county board and a larger income from the state for schools and other purposes according to the village officials.

George Furrance, 1331 W. College avenue, has returned from Chicago where he attended the funeral services of his sister, Mrs. Nellie Bramman, conducted there Thursday.

THE GIFT SHOP AT PETTIBONE'S has literally hundreds of gifts, practical and romantic, luxurious and inexpensive. Attractively new is the Overton-Bentwood wooden tray which may be had in either round or rectangular shapes, light or dark wood. There are gay little Christmas trees which play carols. Children's nursery lamps with little wood figures from nursery rhymes. Interesting pieces in brass and copper. Chromium cocktail and coffee sets, pottery vases and bowls, shoe and hosiery boxes, bed trays, Redwood furniture.

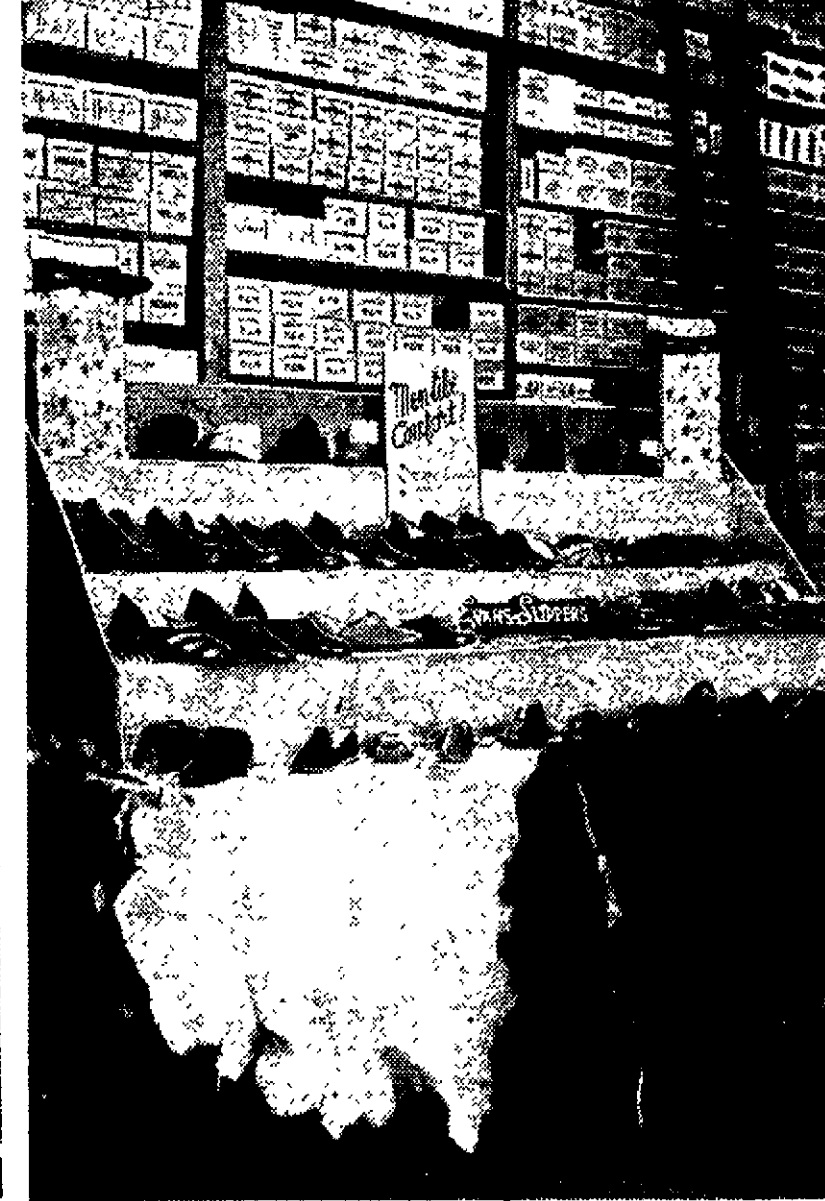

GOOD NEWS FROM GOODMAN'S is the watchword these days of folks who like to combine budget buying with smartest Christmas gifts. This jewelry store, located at 101 E. College avenue, has an enviable selection of watches, diamonds, dresser sets, coffee sets, cocktail sets and other desirable items — not to overlook the very important matter of sets of silverware!

YOU'LL COME TO PETTIBONE'S if you are giving that "most important of all women" a robe or negligee this Christmas. Pettibone's have that robe in satin, moire, crepe and other luxurious fabrics. If she is the woman who scorns fripperies and wants only tailored things, there are smart flannel robes and warm Cuddledowns in irresistible colors. There is a robe or a negligee or a hostess gown to please the most feminine or the most practical of the gentler sex. And if she is lady of generous proportions you'll find something youthful but very kind to her figure.

YOU'LL SMILE TOO, WHEN YOU see the gorgeous collection of hosiery that awaits you at CAMPBELL'S. No gift can excel hosiery for real desirability — because what woman has too many pairs of stockings? The loving camera has also recorded the fact that Campbell's prices for hosiery are exceedingly low despite the fact that quality is undeniably high. The lens also reveals that the store itself is shining with clever Christmas decorations — a pleasant spot to visit no matter what you have in mind for gifts.

PUTTING YOU BACK ON YOUR FEET and making you like it is characteristic of HECKERT SHOE CO., an interior view of which is shown above. Here, indeed, is slipper headquarters, where shoppers have discovered the largest selection of slippers to be found anywhere in this vicinity. All types of slippers are here, too, from dainty satins through the various leathers to the sheep-lined kind.

"IT'S SO MUCH RADIO FOR THE MONEY," is what visitors to SEARS-ROEBUCK'S radio department are saying these days. Above we find Jack Temmers, radio department manager, demonstrating one of the new push-button tuning Silvertones, a member of the line that has been a down-right sensation this season. The massive cabinet, beside which Mr. Temmers stands, houses a truly fine world range chassis and a big speaker that delivers perfect tone. Silvertones can be purchased on convenient terms.

NOT BABES IN TOYLAND, but dollars in GEENEN'S doll department — from which very young ladies must frequently be lead away breathless and protesting after viewing such a remarkable collection. Here are Shirley Temple dolls, Snow White dolls, Baby dolls, Mamma dolls and many, many more. To make the job of helping Santa Claus as easy as possible, Geenen's staffed the doll department with employees who know which dolls are most satisfactory for certain good little girls. The department is conveniently located on the first floor.

FRANKLIN J. GRIST, prominent furrier, was photographed as he inspected a stunning gray Krimmer coat in his attractive shop at 221 E. College avenue. The pleasure of the young lady who is trying on the coat is typical of the thrill every woman gets from such a gift — particularly when it comes from Grist's. The photo doesn't show it, but Grist's coats are remarkably easy to buy.

TAKE A QUICK GLIMPSE at what the photographer found at PETERSEN CLOTHING, the haven of those who seek smart gifts that men will really appreciate. Few men have too many neckties (of the right sort), shirts, socks, pajamas and sport-like, and where is the man who wouldn't appreciate a leather utility bag or a new pair of gloves? All of these items — and many more — are awaiting the shopper who visits 108 W. College avenue. Petersen's know what a man likes, and have proceeded to stock the store with just such items.

BY GORDON MCINTYRE

SANTA CLAUS came a bit early for Appleton and Fox valley fistic fans and brought them a 7-bout program at Armory G last night that was the best they've seen in a long time. It was a card which had hard punches in every bout and they seldom wasted moments.

The most sensational bout was the final windup, just as it should be, and when the fans left they went out talking which should make for a pretty fair crowd next trip. And, incidentally, last night's house was the best this season.

The windup saw Al Scarlata, West De Pere, set down on his pants within 10 seconds after he and Peter D'Amico, Milwaukee, started trading leather. Al got up, went down again and then weathered the storm and finished strong although beaten by the Milwaukeean.

Scarlatas Tagged
In practically every respect the bout left the fans flabbergasted. They were stunned almost as much as Scarlata when the St. Norbert boxer and D'Amico went into a leather trading exhibition in the center of the ring immediately after the first round. D'Amico landed a short, hard right to Scarlata's jaw and it must have landed flush for when Pete finally shook Al loose the latter backed across the ring like a guy on rubber legs and finally the floor came up or Al sat down, whichever you prefer.

The crowd hardly believed the turn in events but if you could have seen Scarlata's eyes you would have known what happened. At three Scarlata got up and there was another flurry and he went down again this time to get up almost immediately.

But still Scarlata was in a bad way for instead of the fast moving, rushing fighter, he stood like a boy nailed to the floor. And as D'Amico came in and slugged with both hands you were certain he was nailed to the boards. There was no other way of accounting for the fact he remained upright.

As the second frame opened Scarlata still was almost immobile but still trading leather. With the round about half over Al began to move again and it appeared he was coming out of the daze. The third frame saw the St. Norbert boxer moving about quickly and throughout the stanza it was a battle. Scarlata did much of the catching, however, and missed a half hundred upper cuts.

Third Al's Best

The third was Al's best round and the folks were pulling for a couple punches to even matters but they weren't forthcoming. In the fourth D'Amico pounded Scarlata badly and while the blows obviously were doing damage, Scarlata appeared as solid as a post. The fifth stanza saw Scarlata put on a sprint but he didn't have steam when he connected and D'Amico still was connecting often enough and hard enough to keep from losing points.

The other half of the windup saw Johnny Francisco of Ripon college beat Connie Schuemperli, Milwaukee. Connie's handlers and the Milwaukeean indicated they didn't like the decision but how could they ever fail to note all the left jabs Connie stopped in the last two frames?

Francisco showed as a rather good looking chap, unmarked for all of his ring experience and a clever boxer. During the first two he didn't do much and Schuemperli picked up points through his aggressiveness and the infighting.

About the third Francisco started landing and making use of his left jab and it scored heavily for him in the fourth and fifth frames. Schuemperli was inclined to rough-house a bit and there were other times when he made no effort to fight being content to tie up Francisco's arms or hold and clinch.

Robbins Loses But—

Another sensational bout saw Al Robbins, Oshkosh, drop a decision to Johnny Roszina, Milwaukee, but in our record books we'll say Robbins was victim of an error. We thought he won on the time honored basis of throwing leather—and more than a few landed.

Robbins fought his usual windmill style of battle pitching every minute. His opponent was a clever lad who didn't work as hard as Robbins but neither did he land as often. The final round saw Robbins

Tunney, Dempsey Say Nova Is Coming to Top Too Fast

BY SID FEDER

NEW YORK.—(P)—Jack Dempsey is predicting Joe Louis' downfall — not right away, but not too far off either. "He'll go back all of a sudden, same as me," says Jack. "He's out of the ring a lot, he'll get fat and out of shape and take things easy. . . . Then along comes some young fellow and beats him one. . . . If ever a guy is on the spot, it's Ray Carlin, Lou Nova's manager. . . . There he was sitting with Lou at the fight writers' party yesterday, when Gene Tunney upped and said — right out in meeting — that Nova was being brought along too fast. . . . That if he knocks off Tommy Farr next week, the only clouter left will be Louis — and he's not ready for that yet. . . . Then Dempsey came along and said the same thing. . . . So Carlin hopped right back at 'em, insisted he's carefully thought over every match his youngster has had, and that all contenders today are three rates — except Nova, of course. . . . When they awarded Dempsey the Eddie Neil medal, a lot of the boys remembered Eddie's first fight assignment with the AP was covering Jack's training camp before the second Tunney fight. . . .

Bill Kern says the toughest fellow his Carnegie Techs tangled with this year was Ed Lough, the Notre Dame center. . . . Stopped 60 per cent of the Skibo plays all by himself. . . . Bill contends the most important part of your defense is a pair of crack backer-uppers, even more than a line.

Columbia Sid Luckman, who played the season's last two weeks with a busted nose, has about decided to pass up pro football chances so he can start a business career. . . . Come-back Dept.: 10 years ago, Tom Sebring was given the old heave-u as U. of Florida coach because his 'Gators dropped three games. . . . Now the university has chosen him president of the alumni association. . . .

Basketball business filling the mail-bag these days. . . . Texas Wesleyan's Rams, who only won 22 out of 23 last year, are looking for a couple more top-flight outfits to fill out their schedule. . . . This department will forward any queries. . . . Rams may take a crack at the national A.A.U. tournament this year. . . . And Colorado folks write the Buffaloes are bringing a team east several points better than Whizzer White's outfit last season. . . . Another nomination for classy grid coaching goes to Hardin-Simmons' Frank Kimbrough, whose boys won 31, lost 7 in four years. . . . Notre Dame has made the top flight in those Dickinson grid ratings 11 times in the last 15 years. . . . Looks like an Irish monopoly there. . . . The year's all-America jinx goes to Auburn's Junie Burns, who only was knocked out once, dislocated his collar bone, sprained both ankles, broke a rib, split his hand and had his eye cut. . . . Wonder what would happen if the plainsmen played more than 10 games.

Kimberly Cagers Seek Second Win

Oppose Piney Woods Colored Aggregation Tomorrow Night

Kimberly—With a victory tucked away as result of an opener last week, the Kimberly AA champs are looking forward to Saturday evening when they tangle with Piney Woods colored collegians. The Negroes are rated highly and are coming to Kimberly with their best playing staff.

Besides showing talent in basketball, the visitors also will have a number of trick plays which they will use. Two of the colored stars who will show are PeeWee Dunn and F. Ford, who are noted for the many ringers they can cut during a game. Cooke, Kent and Reed, all runners-up in the S. C. A. C. last year, will form part of the starting lineup for the collegians.

The Papermakers also will be in there with a fast moving offense and with such players as Joe and Norb Gossens, Elmer and Chub Vanden Velden, Swen Bowman, Artie Hofkins and Buck LeMay will give the colored boys a fast contest. The Kimberly champions completed a record last season which probably will stand for years to come. They defeated all comers in the valley winning a 3-game series with Little Chute. They entered the Two Rivers tournament and came home with a prize while their next journey was to Hartford where they were declared champions after winning over some of the fastest squads in the state.

Saturday's game is scheduled to start at 8:30 and will be preceded by a preliminary.

Lawrence Defeats Mission House in Season's Opener

Viking Cagers Make Ragged Showing in 37 To 30 WinBY DICK DAVIS
GOOD and bad basketball, emphasis on the latter, was exhibited by Lawrence college cagers as they opened their 1938-39 season with a 37 to 30 win over Mission House college of Plymouth at Alexander gymnasium last night.

The Viking squad showed possibilities but there's plenty of work ahead if last night's performance is any criterion.

Aside from brief flashes of brilliance, the Blue and White hoopers indulged in ragged ball handling, wobbly defensive play and erratic free throwing. Mission House started slow but peppered the basket freely in the second half and it might have been a different story if a fair amount of its shots had connected.

Drawing from an enrollment of 186 students, the Gold clad invaders put a rugged, versatile team on the floor that threw a scare into the locals and boasted a fellow by the name of Warren Neerhof who was the chief bogey man. Neerhof bucketed 12 points on five field goals and 2 free throws for high scoring honors and personally conducted a rally with four successive baskets in the third stanza which gave Mission House a 24 to 22 lead going into the fourth frame.

Faliede Comes Through
Norm Faliede, stocky letterman and all-around spark plug, rose to the occasion and put Lawrence back into the lead with three rapid fire baskets. Faliede added another in the closing minutes to tie Wally Cape for Lawrence scoring honors. Cape, who possesses a deadly eye and plays a smooth floor game, gained his eight points on three field goals and two baskets.

The officials gave their whistles a hard workout and called 32 fouls during the course of the tilt. Lawrence muffed most of its gift opportunities, converting only nine out of twenty-four. Mission House netted four of sixteen.

Cape broke the scoring ice in the first quarter with a one-hander and Neerhof put Mission House on the scoreboard when he sank one of two gift shots on Faliede's foul. Jackson, Bennetts and Buesing dumped in 2-points, Buesing free throwed and Jackson added two from the charity mark as Lawrence gained an 11 to 1 edge at the end of the first period and it looked like a walkaway for the locals.

Lead 19-12 At Half

The quintets spent most of the second stanza walking back and forth between free throw lines but Bennetts and Novakofski each found spare moments to sink baskets for Lawrence. Cape, Jackson, Morton and Schade gift tossed for a total of 19 points at the half. Mission House finished the second period with 12 points as B. Stuebbe swished a long one, Neerhof bagged a free throw and a set shot, Ruebel pumped in two from the side and Dunn followed for two points.

Schade made one of two free throws as the second half opened and Wierville counted with a long bucket and a charity throw. Neerhof hooked one from the coffin corner and Wierville added another free throw to bring the Mission House total to 18 after Cape twisted one in from under the basket. Neerhof wiggled out from under a couple of Lawrence players to slio one through the hoop and came through with another basket to knot the score at 22 to 22. The Mission House sharpshooter drove through the disorganized Vike five for another field goal and the score stood 24 to 22 in favor of Mission House at the end of the third quarter.

Bennets Ties Score
Bennets came up from under the hoop to knot the game at 24 to 24 as the fourth chapter got underway but Ruebel rang the 2-point bell from the coffin corner. Faliede had been taking a short rest while all this was going on and Coach Denney probably thought it was about time something was done about the way things were going. He sent Norm in to do it.

Faliede cornered three baskets in short order. Bennets added a free throw and Jackson got into the spirit of things with a bucket as Lawrence took a 33 to 26 margin. Faliede swished another for good measure while Hodge tipped one in for Mission House. Cape made two more points from under the hoop and Wierville hooped one for Mission House in the closing minutes of play to make the final score 37 to 30 for Lawrence.

Power Co. Bowlers Hurl Challenge at Post-Crescent Team

"Any time, any place, any stakes" was the stinging challenge hurled today by the Power company bowlers at the Post-Crescent quint as the result of a 3-game dusting off during Industrial league matches at Arcade alleys Wednesday night. The Power company squad asserted its belief that the newspaper boys were bowling "over their heads" when they chalked up a high team series and is howling for a special match.

The challenge was met with remarks to the effect that it looked like the Power squad hadn't had enough and the Post-Crescent team would be only too willing to prove its superiority. H. L. Davis, Jr., captain of the P-C squad, offered to take the boys on Saturday night provided identical teams were used. The Post-Crescent squad even went so far as to say it would cancel its 2-pin handicap edge and is still waiting for the Power company to carry through with its threats.

NEW LONDON.—At least once in every season a basketball team meets an engagement with only half the regular squad available and it appears the Red and White Cage aggregation is in that kind of a situation tonight with Shawano, one of the league's most formidable teams, invading the New London floor.

Stewart Hammerberg, veteran guard and one of the team's mainstays, is out of play for certain with a painful carbuncle on his left arm. Douglas "Spook" Hoier, a veteran forward and frequent high scorer, was ill yesterday and will not be expected to give much against the flashy Indians.

Coach D. N. Stacy worked his reserves with the rest of the regulars at practice last night and some shifting of the line may be necessary. Kenneth Poppy will take Hammerberg's place at guard. Kenneth Ross and Anton Herres undoubtedly will see action at some post. Ben Huzzar, an up-and-comer guard of last year, has been unable to play yet this year because of a back injury.

The only three regulars available are Gordon Melkieleh, who can play guard or forward; Wally Hammerberg, center; and Kenneth Braut, forward.

The New London squad went to Appleton in the school bus Wednesday after school to scrimmage against the Appleton High school team.

A preliminary at 7:15 between the "B" squads will precede the regular game at 8:15. Officials for the main tilt will be Randy Wilsman and G. Evjue, Green Bay.

Dumb Dan Morgan Is Through With College Boys as Boxers

BY GAYLE TALBOT
NEW YORK.—(P)—Dumb Dan Morgan, the old fight man, says he has given up completely on the college boys. Says all of these big, husky football players are being turned loose on the country right now, looking for something to do, and that he wouldn't give a split infinitive for the lot of them—not as fighters, anyway.

"It's a shame," he says, "because there's probably a world champion amongst 'em, and he and I could get together and make ourselves a bag of money. But somebody else can collect the headaches from now on. No more college football players for me."

Dan, dressed up like a Christmas tree with lights, was watching Lou Nova, best of the young prospects, prepare for his 15-round battle with Tommy Farr a week from tonight.

What, Dan was asked, did he mean by this mysterious affliction that had blighted the entire gridiron crop? Did he mean, possibly, that there were too many trick knees, or mayhap, that the former campus big shots couldn't endure the slow climb to ring fame?

"Neither one," sighed Dan. "The truth is that they just don't like to get hit on the ears. They can't stand to get their ears messed up. Outside of that, these football players are the best bunch of fighters the world ever saw."

"Why, a few years ago I had a boy out of Harvard that would have been the champion, sure. Best prospect I ever had, and I've had 'em for 40 years, more or less. He could hit like a trip-hammer, that boy, and he could take it. I saw myself fixed for life."

"What happened but one day I put him in against a tough sparring partner, and my boy didn't have on his head protection. This fellow slugged him a beauty right on the ear. He came right out of that ring and it took me two hours to get down the swelling in that ear."

"I'm sorry, Mr. Morgan," he says, "but I'm through with this stuff. I'm not going to carry around a couple of scrambled eggs even if I make a million dollars."

"And I never got the gloves on him again," mourned Dan. "That was when I swore off football players and went back to truck drivers and stevedores."

Menasha — Teams for the professional wrestling show to be staged at S. A. Cook armory next Wednesday night have been announced by William Erickson, promoter. Two of the bad boys, Joe Dorsetti and Speedy Franks, will combine to form one team while the other team will be composed of Dave Reynolds and Stan Peasek, the popular Polish grappler.

The bout will be an innovation to Twin City mat fans. The teams will fight 10-minute rounds. The winner of 5 out of 7 rounds will gain the winner of the bout. Anything is permitted as far as two ganging up on one man is concerned and after a grappler has had his shoulders touched to the mat he must leave the ring for the balance of that round. The grapplers get a minute rest between each round.

Chandler Works M. U. For Chicago Tomorrow

Milwaukee—(7)—More speed and precision on the attack were desired today by Coach Bill Chandler from his Marquette university basketball team.

The Hilltoppers, who meet Chicago here tomorrow night, were put through a stiff workout yesterday. The varsity set up plays time after time but could not register because of poor shooting.

Marquette broke even in a pair of games with Chicago last season, and Chandler said he hoped his team would do as well in this one.

America OUT-OF-DOORS

THE TRUTH ABOUT FISHING CONTESTS
By Kenneth Reid, Isaac Walton League of America

FISH in public waters have been made the goats too often in efforts to sell fishing tackle, newspapers, or further some other commercial interest. Catching game fish for sport is one thing; catching them for money or for material reward is quite another. Tagging one or two fish and releasing them in a public body of water with a large price on their heads amounts to practically the same thing as commercial fishing except that the fishing is done with rod and line instead of a net. Such contests induce a great many people who might not otherwise go fishing to fish assiduously, not for the sport of fishing, but with the hope of catching one of the tagged fish and thereby winning a material reward. In the pursuit of these prize fish hundreds or thousands of other fish are caught and waters are badly depleted. Such contests are the antithesis of intelligent conservation and should be frowned upon by all true sportsmen.

Morally Unsound

Appropriation of a public wildlife resource for private promotion schemes is morally if not technically illegal. The net result to fishing is no different than if the prize money were divided up and paid out to all competing fishermen on a pound basis for the fish caught in pursuit of these prizes, and such a practice would be definitely illegal and punishable by fine.

Competitions that involve taking of fish from public waters as a basis for prizes have no proper place in the modern fishing picture. They amount to just another form of commercial fishing and as such should be outlawed. In fact, I would go as far as to say that competitive fishing of any sort, even though the prizes may be only the dubious distinction of being the biggest fish hog when the catches are compared at the end of the day or trip, has no place in the code of ethical sportsmanship.

Competition is a fine thing in baseball, football, tennis or golf; in fact it is the very life of those games, but you do not kill the balls in these games and string them up as proof of your prowess thereby destroying the opportunity of future sport and enjoyment of the game. Seasoned sportsmen-conservationists commonly frown on the competitive angle of fishing as an embryo phase that the neophyte will outgrow with an increase of knowledge and appreciation for angling.

It is gratifying to note that the Wisconsin Conservation department has ruled against further participation in publicity campaigns that involve the tagging of fish for special prizes, because it realizes that such practices are inimical to the best interests of the sport. It is hoped that other state conservation departments will follow the Wisconsin lead and eliminate the vicious practice which if continued will set back much of the excellent work which has been done in stocking our lakes and streams.

Milwaukee — That Marquette's 1938 football team was up against tip-top opposition all the way is evident from the fact that four members of the Hilltop all-opponent eleven were selected on the outstanding all-American combination of the year. They are Davy O'Brien, quarterback, and Ki Aldrich, center, of Texas Christian; Ed Bock, guard, of Iowa State, and Johnny Pingel, halfback, of Michigan State. Many other Hilltop men also have been honored.

Milwaukee — While the long-term indebtedness of Wisconsin villages and school districts has been reduced during the last four years, the public debt of Wisconsin townships has more than doubled during the same period, according to tables just completed by the state tax commission.

Wisconsin villages at the end of the last year of business owed in bonds, state trust fund loans, and long-term notes a total of $4,288,000, compared with $4,308,000 in 1933. School districts reduced their debts from $7,041,071 to $5,105,037. Towns, however, during the same period boosted their public debt from $1,015,777 to $2,281,394. The increase was almost entirely accounted for by the classification called "public improvements", probably induced by the matching policies of the New Deal spending agencies.

Badger Cagers are Primed for Third Straight Victory

Battle Notre Dame Saturday Night; Bell Will Lead U. of W.

MADISON —(7)—The university of Wisconsin Basketball team will be trying for its third straight victory tomorrow night when it meets Notre Dame's high scoring quintet on the fieldhouse court here.

The Badgers, victorious over Beloit and Marquette, have stressed defense all week in anticipation of a fast breaking, accurate shooting Irish offensive.

Byron Bell, lanky center from Neenah, has been chosen to lead the Badgers. Like the football team, coach Bud Foster's men elected a captain at the end of the season. Foster names a captain prior to each contest.

Wisconsin has never defeated Coach George Keogan's five. Last year the Irish took a disputed 33-31 decision at South Bend. This year both teams are undefeated, with Notre Dame's record much the better. The Irish have scored 143 points in two games.

Fred Wegner scouted the games and reports the Irish are fast and good shots. The late rush of Marquette, which nearly defeated Wisconsin Saturday, was emphasized by Coach Foster all week. He has drilled the squad in a tight defense in order to cope with an expected Irish "rush act."

Leading the big South Bend team will be Mark Ertel, 6 foot 5 inch center, said by many basketball authorities to be the finest in collegiate circles. The Tipton, Ind., lad has paced the team this year and is heading the individual scoring list.

Foster is likely to start the same players who opened against Marquette. Andy Smith, Wausau forward, has been the main gun offensively for Wisconsin. He has scored 16 points to lead the team.

The probable lineups:

New Bicycle Laws To be Effective March 1 Next Year

First Licenses Issued Will Be Good Until Feb. 28, 1940

Kaukauna—The two ordinances regulating the licensing and operation of bicycles passed by the common council Tuesday evening will go into effect March 1, 1939. The two measures give Kaukauna a model regulatory system based on the experience of other communities. The first license which will be taken out by bicyclists will be good until Feb. 28, 1940, and will be renewable on March 1 of each succeeding year.

All wheels must be registered and tagged with the local police department. The rider's name, address and description of his bicycle must be given. An identification tag will then be affixed, with a choice of 25 cents made. Duplicate tags may be had for 15 cents if the original tags are lost.

No bicycles which are judged by police to be in an unsafe mechanical condition will be registered. Any rider who uses such an unsafe wheel may be suspended from riding for 10 days by the chief of police. Fines of up to $25 or jail terms of not more than 30 days may be imposed for violation of this registration ordinance. All changes of ownership must be registered within 10 days.

Regulates Operation The second measure relates to the operation of bicycles. It will be unlawful for the operator of any bicycle when upon a street to permit any one to ride with him at any time, or to attach his bicycle or riding to any vehicle moving on the street. No stunt or trick riding will be allowed, as both hands must be kept on the handle bars at all times except when making an appropriate traffic signal. There will be no participation in races with other vehicles.

No owner or operator of a bicycle shall park on any sidewalk area or upon any roadway in such a manner as to interfere with free passage by the public. It shall be unlawful to ride on the sidewalks, and riders on streets shall ride as near as practicable within 5 feet of the right hand curb or edge, except when passing another vehicle or making a left turn. When riding in groups single file, and not abreast, unless necessary, order is called for.

Every bicycle operator upon the city streets during any of the time between one half hour after sunset until one half hour before sunrise shall be equipped with a lamp on the front, exhibiting a white light visible for a distance of at least 500 feet to the front, and with a lamp on the rear, exhibiting a red light visible for a distance of at least 500 feet to the rear, except that a red reflector not less than 3 inches in diameter may be used in place of a rear red light.

Must Heed Signals Every bicycle rider shall stop at all stop signs and shall obey all stop and go signals, and shall as much as possible avoid the busy streets. A penalty of not more than $25 is provided in the ordinance. In default of payment the offender may be imprisoned in the county jail for not more than 30 days. The Veterans of Foreign Wars are working on plans to organize a Bicycle Safety club in connection with these ordinances, the passage of which was a necessary preliminary to the veterans' project.

500 in Audience as Seniors Appear in 3-Act Production

Kaukauna—"Crazy House" was the title and an audience of almost 500 saw the ultimate in such domestic last night as Kaukauna High school seniors presented their annual class play at the civic auditorium under the direction of James W. Lang. Laugh followed on the eccentricities of the Bellinger family, with Mary Jane Bellinger's fine performance as Mrs. Aspasia Bellinger showing the way. Composer of an opera without words or music, and with an utter disregard for the realities of the household, she perfectly plays the indulgent mother whose chief concern, besides her opera, is that people be allowed to "express themselves."

Her children, named Aay, Bee and See, are played respectively by Clifford Fernal, Arlene Van Gompel and Armella Boucher. Fernal brusquely takes the role of a young man for three acts preparing to enter a day bicycle race; Arlene portrays the indecisive young lady who "probably" loves Dick Charles, an aspiring undertaker played by Clifford Kalista, but who won't say yes until she knows her efforts are successful; Armella the "brat" of the family, whose "self-expression" finds its main outlet in hammering everything in sight, people's toes preferred.

Appears As Grandma Ena Richards, capably belittling Grandma Dimity, with a penchant for entering radio contests, sending for free samples of everything and depending on chain letters for money, Lorraine Powers ably plays Laura, the maid, revealed as the first act closes secretly married to Aay. Her savings keep the family above water for a time, and in addition she gets a job to be the group's sole wage earner.

Paul Akers arouses the audience's sympathy as a meek, down-trodden father, who when he loses an election for which he had to resign his job in order to run, is forced to take over the household duties of Laura. Jonathan Q. Pybus, a blustering salesman in the person of Robert Niesen, doesn't help the family finances any by unloading a 39-volume encyclopedia, the first he had ever sold, on Aspasia, who sees only the $1 down to pay. When payments lag Jonathan brings his manager, suavely acted by Earl O'Connor, to settle things, and Earl then sells the Bellingers another set costing twice as much.

Faints into Family Suzy Kloppenhauer enters the play as a saleswoman who faints as she tries to sell Mrs. Bellinger a bird bath. She is adopted into the family, and under the tutelage of Mrs. Bellinger realizes her ambition of being a "glamour girl," finally marrying Jonathan and getting the lead part in a theater production.

John Burns provides a bit of comedy in the role of Signor Botticelli, an Italian who visits the Bellingers with a view to renting their house, and is mistaken by Mrs. Bellinger as an opera impresario, for whom she insists on playing her opera. Laura's savings, which she turns over to the family to keep them going when Aay reveals their marriage, can't last forever, with Grandma spending money for contests. Mrs. Bellinger buying a $999 encyclopedia and Aay and Bee unwilling to go to the extreme of finding a job.

Pegler Says the People are Best Guardians of Own Rights

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER New York—Many Americans calling themselves progressives profess to be shocked by M. Daladier's use of his powers in France and perceive there the beginning of fascist regime. The politics of France are so very complex that not even Frenchmen know what it is all about, but from this distance it does appear that, under the pretext of a national emergency, one man acquired more authority than a democracy can prudently confer.

Had he used this power to promote communism, those Americans who claim to be merely progressives, not communists, but cannot be induced to say one word against "the greatest experiment for human betterment ever made," would have been pleased. For, obviously, they could not be displeased to see France also undertake the same great experiment, nor could they pretend to be displeased if the Russian experiment should one day be tried here.

But when a trusted man uses his powers to try the wrong kind of experiment that is, indeed, alarming and should be a lesson to us all, including those who euphemistically call themselves merely progressives.

The developments in France would seem to rebuke the enthusiastic faith expressed by such progressives in proposals to enlarge and solidify the powers of the American executive. Other Americans who have opposed such proposals have been intemperately denounced as fascists, but the arguments do not foot up.

No fascist believes in parliament or in independent courts, and no believer in democracy would want to hand over to any individual all the power and responsibility of government and abolish the function of congress by electing picked men pledged to do the bidding of the leader's messengers.

Must Be Trying to Bow in Both Directions It must be a very trying life, that of the Progressive who shudders at the misuse of authority which has been trustingly conferred but still feels compelled to admire the rule of Josef Stalin, who abhors the use of military force to put down a national strike as a menace to the safety of the state but finds no fault with a rule under which no man is allowed to strike or even speak out of turn.

But possibly it will be said that it is all right to confer great powers if you know your man; that it is all right to do it here but not in France, and that dictatorship is not wrong of itself if it is anti-capitalist. That does not seem to be the position of those so-called Progressives who are otherwise known as "fellow-travelers of the communists." But in demanding such powers for Mr. Roosevelt it is possible that they have misjudged their man and that, given such powers and conditions similar to those which occurred in France, he, too, would disappoint them.

There never have been any proletarian Roosevelts, nor have any of the Roosevelts even gone to the public schools, and it was John L. Lewis himself who once accused the president of having cursed impartially both labor and its enemies. This Mr. Lewis interpreted as a rather special curse on labor.

No 'Varsity Contests in America So Far The showdowns between labor leaders — not labor — and public authority in this country have been mere bullpen exercises to date, and with luck the nation as a whole will never have to engage in a variety competition of this kind. But there is no assurance in Mr. Roosevelt's record that, in the event of such a showdown, he would use the authority which the fellow-travelers have bespoken for him in a manner to gratify those who admire the soviet experiment. They may be thinking of a future president who could be relied on, but that is highly speculative. The next president might be a man who,

Light Oats are Creating Winter Problem of Feed

Dairy Cattle Can Use Grain to Good Advantage, Expert States

Light oats produced this year are giving Wisconsin farmers a feed problem this winter, according to information received by R. C. Swanson, county agricultural agent. Nearly half of the state's 1938 oat crop was reported light. Rainy, wet weather, it is said, came at just the wrong time during the growing season and caused much lodging in oat fields. It seems that lodged oats never fill out very well.

Normally, good heavy oats are about two-thirds kernel and one-third hull, according to Gus Bohstedt, animal nutritionist at the state college of agriculture, and it is the kernel which furnishes most of the food material in oats. Or to put it another way, about 71 per cent of heavy oats is food material which can be easily digested. The other part is fiber or less digestible material.

This year, the oats harvested ran all the way from one-third to two-thirds hull, which is extremely light, Bohstedt said. Light oats may contain as low as 60 per cent of digestible materials, bringing them down out of the concentrate class of feeds almost into the roughage class.

Light Oats

Bohstedt is certain that dairy cattle can use light oats to good advantage. Where the grain is quite light and where it makes up a large part of the concentrate or grain mixture, he recommended increasing slightly the amount of grain fed in relation to the amount of hay and silage.

Where cows of the larger breeds are being fed according to the rule of one pound of concentrate or grain mixture to four pounds of hay, he suggests that the amount be changed to a pound of grain to every three and a half pounds of hay. For smaller cows like Guernseys and Jerseys, the rule of one pound of grain to every three pounds of hay can be changed to a pound of grain for every 2 1/2 or 2 3/4 pounds of hay. Horses, too, can make good use of light oats, although Bohstedt warns against feeding dirty or musty oats.

Where hogs, cattle, sheep, or poultry are being fattened, light oats seemingly do not fit into the picture very well.

Fat Accumulates

In animals which are being finished for market, Bohstedt explained, fat accumulates, and is deposited not merely on the outside but also in the inside of the body which contains the digestive organs. In relation to the size of the animal, the amount of space in which the digestive organs can work is cut down.

"As the steer or hog gets fatter, it becomes more and more difficult for him to convert his feed into fat," Bohstedt explained. "Livestock men know of this tendency, and they know that the only way to get the greatest

Expert Predicts Lower Prices on Poultry and Eggs

Expects Production Will Expand During Next Year

Outagamie county poultry producers can look for a further expansion of poultry production in 1939. This expansion, Don S. Anderson, state economist, says in a bulletin to R. C. Swanson, county agent, is likely to develop because of favorable winter egg prices and low feed costs. He is of the opinion that it likely will mean lower prices for both live poultry and eggs during the last half of next year.

"Egg prices have advanced rather sharply since mid-June and will likely continue favorable in relation to feed costs during the winter months," said Anderson this week. "The advance in egg prices that has taken place within recent months can be attributed to the relatively light egg production caused by small-sized laying flocks, the small storage holdings of eggs, and the improvement in consumer demand that has taken place. The size of laying flocks in the United States was about 10 per cent smaller than the 10-year average at the beginning of the fall months, but about the same as last year."

Cold storage holdings of eggs on Oct. 1 this year were 30 per cent amount of finish or fat on a steer or hog in the shortest time is by giving him highly concentrated feeds like corn.

"Light oats require much more work from the digestive system than does corn and they are worth only about 60 or 70 percent of the value of corn for fattening cattle. Accordingly, cattle, hogs, and sheep fed on light oats do not make their gains as quickly or as economically as when they are fed corn."

smaller than last year and the smallest on that date since 1932, according to the state economist. Another factor which Anderson sees as having a bearing upon poultry prospects is the relationship of feed prices to egg prices. On Nov. 1, 100 pounds of poultry ration, he explains, cost the Wisconsin farmer 3.8 cents of eggs based on Chicago prices for eggs and feed. This is considerably less than the cost a year ago or the 10-year average for the same date.

Anderson is of the opinion that feed prices will continue low in relation to egg prices and favorable to feeding for heavy egg production at least until the next grain harvest season. Live poultry prices, on the other hand, have been lower this fall than last because of larger marketings. The number of chicks raised last spring, it is explained, was about 13 per cent larger than in 1937. Unless there is a marked

Chemists Devise Quick Test for Food Cheat

A quick test and a cheap test is a first class aid to the food and drug administration in protecting the public from food and drug cheats. A simple test for mineral oil in butter, worked out by chemists of the administration's Chicago laboratory, makes it easy to detect as little as a half of 1 per cent of mineral oil, takes only about 20 minutes and costs only a few cents for chemicals.

In the test the butter is melted, treated with a chemical, and then diluted with distilled water. A resulting milky or turbid solution indicates adulteration with mineral oil. Pure butterfat is clear upon dilution.

On the rare occasions when butter is adulterated with mineral oil, the cheat stands to make a substantial profit from the substitution, at the expense of the consumer. Mineral oil sells for only a few cents a pound.

In the first big application of this new method, the Chicago office tested the whole output of one suspected plant—about $50,000 worth of butter in all. Some was of market quality, some lots adulterated with mineral oil, and some short in butterfat. The adulterated butter had to go to soap manufacturers. Butter low in fat had to be reworked to get rid of the extra water.

If your family is against leftovers try mixing them with other foods. Or never serve any warmed over food the day following its first appearance. Wait at least a day; the chances are the family will forget it is a leftover.

Lemke Cows Show Best Production Record in Month

Holstein Herd Boasts Average of 36.1 Lbs. Of Butterfat

Showing an average butterfat production of 36.1 pounds the Holstein herd of Arnold Lemke, Shiocton, placed first in the Outagamie County Herd Improvement association, No. 2, last month. Second high in production was the Frank Diermeier, Shiocton, herd with a 30.7-pound average.

The Frank Drinks, Appleton, herd was third with 30.6 pounds of butterfat, and the Earl Hughes, Neenah, herd fourth with 28.2 pounds of fat. Fifth place was taken by the Huebner Bros., Hortonville, herd with an average of 27.8 pounds of fat.

Highest in individual production was a cow in the Fred and Emil Kaphingst herd. The Holstein showed 68.9 pounds of butterfat. A cow in the Huebner herd was second with 67 pounds, and a cow in the Willis Schroeder herd third with 60.6 pounds.

Following are owners and number of cows with 50 or more pounds of butterfat for the month: Frank Diermeier, Huebner Bros., and Louis Tim, 2 each, William Griesbach, Fred and Emil Kaphingst, Arnold Lemke, Earl Hughes, George Retzlaff, Mrs. Mary Sams and Willis Schroeder, 1 each.

Based on reports received from veterinarians throughout the state, it is estimated by the state department of agriculture and markets that 63,193 horses or about 11 per cent of the Badger state's total equine population of more than 550,000 were vaccinated this year against encephalomyelitis, more commonly known as sleeping sickness.

During the outbreak of the disease which ran its course between July 1 and October 1, there were more than 8,017 reported cases. Only 135 vaccinated horses died compared to 1,556 deaths among unvaccinated horses.

Regarding treatment of the disease, the department points out that of the 4,262 cases treated with serum, 698 horses died, compared to 993 deaths among 3,755 cases treated without serum.

"The results of vaccination indicate," says Dr. V. S. Larson, state veterinarian, "that when properly done and if administered long enough before exposure to insure

Counties to Take Part in State WPA Project for Soil Analyzing

Realizing that soils and crops, too, get hungry, many Wisconsin farmers are planning to take an active part in the state-wide WPA soil analyzing project being organized in many of the 71 counties. Outagamie county is taking part in the program, according to R. C. Swanson, county agent.

Amassing evidence is convincing the operators of all types of soil that crops won't grow unless there are in the soil liberal quantities of certain important minerals. Among other things, they have found that barley needs a lot of potash and phosphorus, or it will remain stunted and produce little grain. And alfalfa, they know, is a heavy feeder and needs a great amount of these minerals. Furthermore they have observed time and again that alfalfa doesn't like sour acid soils and doesn't grow well in them.

Under the 1938-39 project, Wisconsin farmers will be able to get, through the state's soils laboratory, free tests of their soils for potash, phosphorus, and lime. They will be able, it is said, to determine which and how much of these minerals are most needed on their farms.

A small branch soil testing laboratory is being established in the counties. Trained workers to do the soil testing will be provided by WPA, and space, light, and heat for the laboratory will be provided by the county. Each county project is to be supervised by the county agent in cooperation with the county agricultural committee.

Sponsor

The state-wide project is being sponsored by the Wisconsin College of Agriculture, with C. J. Chapman, soils specialist, acting as the sponsor's agent. H. H. Hull is the state supervisor.

Approximately 250,000 sacks for collecting soil samples have been or will be distributed throughout the state. Schools, youth groups, local agricultural conservation committees, and others cooperating in distributing sacks and collecting soil samples.

Soil on many Wisconsin farms, laboratory tests show, are getting rather low in such things as potash, phosphorus, and lime. These minerals, it is said, have been leaving the farms in milk which went to cheese factories and condenseries, in beef and pork which went to the packing plants, and in other farm products.

The result of this mineral use, it is claimed, is that many Wisconsin farms are producing only 20 bushels of oats to the acre where 30 years ago they produced 30 and 40 bushels, or the farms are raising half a

Easy on the eye—easy to buy—on General Motors terms!

Exercise your hindsight now!

ONE of these days you're going to get tired of watching these agile Buicks flash past you!

One of these days you're going to get fed up on hearing friends rave about Buick comfort, and Buick smoothness, and the glorious view through Buick's bigger and broader windshield and windows.

One of these days you're going to wish you too had a car styled like a bit of tomorrow here today.

And one day you'll ask yourself why you didn't see what a buy Buick is at its new, deep-cut, 1939 prices. Sure as shootin' all that's going to happen—unless you do certain things now.

First—come try out the brilliant surging power of this Buick's Dynaflex great eight engine. Next—find a rough stretch—and discover for yourself how steady this smooth traveler is in its going, how directable in its easy handling.

Finally—take paper and pencil, and when noting Buick's surprising low delivered price, note also the extras it includes, the big reductions over last year, and the actual savings you can make by putting your dollars in Buick!

For the value's up mightily as you can see. And yet this great straight-eight actually costs less than last year—less than you'd expect—less even than some sixes.

How much less? We're waiting to watch your eyes pop when we tell you!

William Powell, who is now well on the road to recovery, is caught by the cameraman in his new mountain-side home. It won't be long now before Bill is back at work.

By Jimmie Fidler

Hollywood — It certainly does beat all how suspicious and critical some people are. You'd be surprised if you knew, for instance, how many Hollywoodites — who should know better — suspect Sam Goldwyn of an ulterior motive in making Jimmie Roosevelt a vice president of his company. Completely overlooking the fact that Mr. Roosevelt, in spite of his tender years, has been a conspicuous success in every business that he has touched since 1932, they contend that the one day which Jimmie spent here, some weeks ago, did not give him a solid enough background in picture-making to warrant a studio vice presidency. They even hint that Sam Goldwyn might be trying to ingratiate himself with the president of the United States. Tch, tch!

There, in a nutshell, you have Hollywood's chief trouble — suspicion. Sam Goldwyn, being a genius, knows how to recognize genius. As far as Jimmie Roosevelt's practical picture experience is concerned, he's certainly as well equipped as many of the other vice presidents who spend Hollywood's millions. And look what a success he was as an insurance man! Doesn't that mean something? Of course it does — and the opposition press recognized it long ago. Then, too, there's the matter of spirit. Jimmie proved he has it when he announced that he wanted to be identified with an industry "in which service to the general public is an outstanding feature." He said he was

CUFF NOTES: Many happy returns to Vic McLaglen — he's celebrating his 50th birthday for the third time tomorrow. Mark that New York jaunt of Alice Faye's "Indefinitely Deferred" — she has a bad case of flu. Front office orders just handed down at M-G-M ban all publicity about the Metro stars' interest in horse racing — amusing when Louis B. Mayer is a stable-owner and a betting addict. Don't expect that important announcement from David Niven and Jackie Dyer — she's still seventeen and her mama thinks that's much too young. Blue pencil those unrumors about a new romance for Rudy (One-punch) Vallee — Gloria Youngblood is still his big moment. It's time out for Harry Ritz while he tries to cure that persistent neuritis at Palm Springs. What theatrical pomp when Glenda Farrell was formally installed as Honorary Mayoress of North Hollywood last night! That near hurricane the other night blew fifty of Dick Arlen's prize chickens out of their coops — they're still gone with the Wind. . . Universal is posting three of Deanna Durbin's dresses as all of her recent recordings to Toronto, Canada — they'll be auctioned for the Christmas Charity fund. . . A bouquet to Bob Hope for dining and entertaining 100 newsmen 't' other night. . . Local newshawks who have been predicting the arrival of English actress Vivian Leigh have missed a bet — she's been living in a Beverly Hills hotel for two weeks under the name of Vivian Holman. . . Dorothy Lamour and Mort Millman, no longer feuding, have joined forces and will fight that agent who's trying to collect thirty grand. . . It's a Mexican tour for the Humphrey Bogart. . . Broderick Crawford, stage star son of Helen Broderick, is shopping for a new shirt — he lost his old one on Notre Dame. . .

Yesterday, while Dick Arlen was alone in his ranch house, a stranger came to the door with a tale of woe. He was broke — his wife and kiddies were hungry — he had heard that Mr. Arlen was kind — he had walked miles to ask his aid. Dick felt the proper glow as he dug deep and gave the man a ten spot. But the glow faded a few minutes later when Sam, his majordomo, arrived and heard the story "Yeah," he said dryly, "I saw your down-and-out leave. He was driving a '38 La Salle."

BOOS AND BOUQUETS: Best picture of the week — "Thanks for Everything" — and a laurel crown to Paulette Goddard for her fine performance in "Dramatic School" . . . Most intriguing picture title in the production mill: "Dark Victory," the newest Belle Davis starrer. . . A blood-red tide with which he took that licking U.S.C. dished out to the Irish of Notre Dame. . . A lusty boo to the entire industry for making reform school deportment a prerequisite to juvenile stardom. . . And a poison-ivy nosegay to those stars who air their domestic difficulties in nite clubs — Miriam Hopkins and Anton Litvak being the latest contestants. . .

Edgar Bergen has "blown his lines" in two successive takes for "You Can't Cheat an Honest Man," and everyone was getting tense, for it was five p. m. and that means quitting time under the new rules. "Once more," said the director, and once more Bergen muffed his speech. Charlie McCarthy looked at his master. "The next time you buy a toupe, Bergen," he said crustily, "try to find one with some brains in it!"

Constitution Given Approval at Meeting Of New Woman's Club

Weyauwega — The Woman's club met with Miss Susan Bennett and her sister, Mrs. Hans Peterson, at their home this week. A constitution was drawn up and put into effect. Miss Bennett gave a topic on the necessary steps taken by a village to become a city and explained the advantages of such a move. Mrs. E. C. Miller read quotations from a speech by Daniel Webster. Mrs. Hans Peterson read an article taken from a report on elementary schools by Lyle M. Spencer of the University of Chicago. Mrs. Brewster's topic was on the national rededication day, Dec. 15. This day is to be celebrated in the United States in honor of the "Bill of Rights" which was ratified Dec. 15, 1791. This bill assured American citizens their liberty, giving them freedom of worship, speech and press, equal justice and many more liberties and rights. A play, "The Dear, Dear Children" by Sophie Kerr, was read by several members. The next meeting will be held Jan. 16 at the home of Mrs. Brown Morcy. Miss Eunice Peterson left for Cleveland, Ohio, the first of the week to spend the winter with her niece. Ben Wiener has purchased the residence of Mrs. Charles Villwock residence and expects to move their by April 1.

Beginning on Dec. 11 the Rev. Russell Peterson of the Presbyterian church will start a series of four sermons entitled: "Nativity Questions." The dates and titles are as follows: Dec. 11, "What Has the World Come To?" Dec. 13, "What Has Come to the World?" Dec. 25, "What Has Come to Me?" Jan. 1, "What Is the World Coming To?" The choir is preparing Christmas anthems of rare beauty to enhance the worship at these services. Coffee grounds contain an oil which, when treated with strong potash lye, forms a solid soap, scientists have found.

Rockets Favored To Top Phantoms In League Contest

Neenah to Meet West DePere Here Saturday Night

Neenah—Coach Ole Jorgensen's Neenah High school cage squad will be favored to defeat the Black Phantoms from West DePere in the Northeastern Wisconsin conference clash here Saturday night, but the Red Rockets anticipate no easy task in topping their opponents.

West DePere will have a veteran squad opposing the Neenah aggregation with two Van Sturnes, Becken and Gerkon on the roster. One of the Van Sturnes, it will be remembered, was second highest scorer in the conference last season, trailing Reed, Shawano, by only a few points.

The West DePere five, however, has played only one conference tilt this season, losing to Kaukauna, while Neenah already has marked up two conference victories, one of which was a triumph over the Kaws. Neenah also won from New London.

In its four starts all of which took place in the first week of the season, Neenah has three victories to its credit. Besides the two conference wins, the Rockets scored a victory over Milwaukee Shorewood. They lost to Appleton to account for their one defeat.

For the first time since the basketball season got underway, Coach Jorgensen has had an opportunity to get a good look at his reserve material. In the first four games, the coach has been forced to limit his cast to six veteran players because of lack of time for practice.

Reserves to Work While it is likely that the Neenah starting cast for the West DePere game will be composed of the five veterans, the coach probably will substitute some of his reserve material, especially if the score should favor the Rockets.

The probable starting line-up will consist of Hackstock and Peterson, forwards; Schmidt, center, and Hesselman and Kettering, guards. Others who may see action are Muench, Krueger, Buxton, Kettering, Erdmann and LaBumbar.

In the preliminary game Saturday night, Ivan Williams' second team and the West DePere reserves will clash.

The game originally was scheduled to be played here Friday night, but because of the all-athletic banquet tonight, the date was changed.

Jace Leader Will Speak at Dinner

Menasha Junior Chamber Will Meet at Church Tuesday

Menasha—George Greeley, Oshkosh, prominent in Junior Chamber of Commerce work for over 11 years, will be the chief speaker at the dinner meeting of the Menasha Jaces in the dining room of the First Congregational church next Tuesday night. The dinner will be served at 6:30.

Other veterans in Jace work will be included on the program. Those who have been invited included Harold C. Finger, Appleton, former state president; Ray Peterson, Oshkosh, former president of that chapter; Ernest C. Brown, president of the Oshkosh chapter; Fred Sprehe, secretary of the Oshkosh Jaces, and Donald C. Colburn, state director of the Oshkosh Jaces.

Mr. Greeley helped to organize the state group and is a former state president, former national director from Wisconsin and former president of the Oshkosh Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Members have been asked to bring prospective members to the dinner. Young men between the ages of 21 and 35 are invited to attend. The dinner will be served by members of the Congo club of the First Congregational church and will be prepared by their wives.

The annual Christmas dancing party of the Jaces will be held Saturday night, Dec. 17, in Elks hall. A varied program with a "man on the street" broadcast as the main feature is being planned by Dr. George Stasney, social chairman.

Install Bike Racks in Court at High School

Menasha—Bicycle racks have been installed in the bicycle court at Menasha High school, according to Principal A. J. Armstrong. The racks are of metal and are located at the rear of the building between the gymnasium and academic department wings. Cooperation of the youngsters by placing their bicycles in the racks will improve the appearance of the school, Mr. Armstrong pointed out. Formerly several hundred bicycles were left by the students along Seventh street.

REMODELING PERMIT

Neenah—A permit was granted this morning to John E. Petersen, 321 Wisconsin avenue, to build a new garage and remodel his home at a cost of $1,000. The garage will be 18 by 26 feet. The permit was granted by John Blenker, assistant city building inspector.

The Twin Cities office of the Appleton Post-Crescent for its editorial, circulation and advertising departments is located at 510 N. Commercial street and the telephone number is 4100. News items, copy or orders for advertising and orders for subscriptions may be left at the office or may be telephoned. This number may be called before 7 o'clock in the evening.

They were David Prosser, Richard Walters, Forest Chapin, Richard Gaertner and James Anderson.

The closing ceremony was in charge of William Hahn and Frank Younger.

6 Deaths, 5 Births are Reported in November

Menasha—The death rate in Menasha exceeded the number of births during November, according to the vital statistics report of H. O. Haug, city health officer. During the month there were six deaths and five births. In addition 12 marriages were recorded by the health officer.

CONSTRUCTION OF MINIATURE CITY IS NEENAH FIRST GRADE PROJECT

Neenah—A miniature community built by the construction-conscious students of Miss Elizabeth Hauser's first grade at McKinley school, some of whom are shown above, is complete from a skyscraper hotel to residential dwellings. Besides a large number of homes and the hotel, the miniature city includes a depot, bank, grocery and shoe store, church, bakery, drug store, gas station and school. The buildings were made out of cardboard boxes and paper. Landscaping was done and streets built.

Warns Against "Cheap Standard of Living" In Institutions

Neenah—"Anything is good enough for those poor children in institutions" is an outmoded philosophy which, though popular in old England and early America, still creeps in today, declared Marvin Dubbe, superintendent of the Children's Country Home at Winnetka, in a talk Thursday noon at the meeting of the Rotary club at the Valley Inn.

That philosophy must be broken entirely, the superintendent stated, for if you give these children a cheap standard of living, when they grow up they will be associating with your children and become an added burden upon them, he argued. He contended, "If you don't lift them out of a bad environment into a better one, as soon as they get out into the world again, they will return to their former life."

Dubbe presented in a word picture the life at the children's home. He related the history of the establishment, described the physical plant, outlined the program, talked about expenses, social work and the religious, educational and recreation aspects.

One point which the superintendent especially stressed to the Rotarians, a point which he said could be entirely cleared up in the minds of the public is that the "children are not there because of any fault of their own."

"The children at our home," he emphasized, "are victims of social accidents, such as broken homes." The home, he said, wouldn't be necessary if a preventive job could be done among parents. He pointed out that there are 10,000 children in Wisconsin without their own homes and many more children still are living in homes which are bad for them. Contributing to the large number of homeless children are 4,000 divorces which take place in Wisconsin alone in one year.

"We often are asked if our children are problem children," Dubbe said. "No, they aren't. But I haven't much use for a child who doesn't become a problem occasionally. Children should have enough stuff to kick over the traces once in a while."

Cultivate 65 Acres "The home is on a 139-acre plot of land, 65 acres of which are in cultivation. We have a dairy and keep hogs for our own use. We supply the livestock with feed, and in the garden we raise a large amount of our food," he said.

There are four cottages in the community, three of which are for children and one for the administration. In one of the cottages there are 11 children, in another 13 and in the third 16. Smaller boys live with the girls in two of the cottages, while the older boys live in the other cottage.

"We keep the smaller boys and girls together for we believe that it contributes to a more natural home life, establishes a brother and sister relationship," the superintendent explained.

"At the head of each cottage is a mother, and she is the key person in this work," Dubbe told the Rotarians. She assumes the roll of mother as near as possible so as to create an affectionate relationship. Besides a cottage mother, there also is a man at the head of the boys' cottage. He takes care of the heavy chores and teaches the children agriculture.

Have Recreation The superintendent explained the procedure for commitment of a child to the home. "We make sure, before admitting them, that we can be of service to them," he said. He added that the home doesn't take private cases. He said that the children attend the public schools in Winnetka and are permitted recreational periods. However, they have their chores which they must do.

Although the home is nondenominational, the children are urged to attend churches of their own faith and they must go to at least one service Sunday morning. In addition, the children have formed a congregation of their own and use the small chapel on the grounds, he concluded.

McKinley School First Grade Pupils Build Miniature City

Neenah—Construction-conscious students in Miss Elizabeth Hauser's first grade at McKinley school this week put on the finishing touches to a miniature city.

Consisting of all types of buildings from a skyscraper hotel to residential homes, the miniature community was an outgrowth of a home unit which the students started to study last fall. Cardboard boxes and paper and a little paint composed the equipment.

The children decided to make residential and business sections, their teacher reported, and they brought cardboard cartons for the large buildings in the business sections. Doors and windows were cut and roofs of various colors were constructed, she said.

The most presumptuous structure in the little town is the skyscraper hotel which was erected at the south end of the city. The city covers a large area in the class room, having been built along two walls of the room.

Three of the students, Jimmy Bachman, Danny Klinkke, and DeLores Simons, exhausted their architectural ingenuity in constructing the hotel.

Build Church The church was made by Buddy Knaack and Howard Berendsen, while Ann Sword and Robert Larson collaborated on the fire station. The First National bank was erected by Phyllis Huth and Merrill Miller, while the depot was built by Gloria Muenzel, Nancy Olski and Bobby Jankowski.

A grocery store and a shoe store also are included in the business section. Margaret Blair, Robert Winter and Hazel Renhart, building the former and Joan Francart and Mary Jane VanOudenhoef, erected the latter. Ann Sword was alone in the venture of constructing the Neenah Bakery store, while Darwin Otto erected the drug store.

McKinley school also is in evidence in the model community, the educational structure having been erected by Muriel Kuehn and Roy Peterson. A gas service station was built by Helen Kissinger and Joan Haupe. All of the buildings have appropriate signs.

Erect Houses Each member of the class erected a house for the residential section, and all the students worked together in making trees and bushes for landscaping lawns and boulevards. Automatic traffic lights were built by Richard Volkman and Jimmy Bachman for the street intersection.

All of the students helped to paint a mural representing a sky, trees and buildings for the background. Streets, boulevards, sidewalks and lawns were painted on wrapping paper to make the floor plan for the city. Toy cars even travel the streets and toy trains pull into the small depot.

Jay Cagers Invade Clintonville for Conference Game

Tilt Tonight Is First Conference Game for Menasha High

Menasha—The Bluejays of Menasha High school will travel to Clintonville to open their Northwestern Wisconsin conference season tonight. Coach N. A. Calder has nominated William Thomas and Anderson for forwards, Harry Zolinski at center and Henry Larndson and William Resch at guards for the starting lineup.

However, Clintonville already has dropped two games in the conference and the Menasha coach probably will be able to use his entire squad of 13 men as he continues his search for a working combination. The other members of the varsity squad are Earl Block, Wippich, Kuester, Thompson, Roland O'Brien, Latondress, Clarence Zielski and Wilbur Markley.

Neenah Officials See Little Change In City Tax Rate

Increase in State, County Demands Is Less Than $3,000

Neenah—With the state and county tax for 1939 for Neenah amounting to $107,150.20, an increase of $2,893.79 in comparison with this year's assessment, it is expected that there will be no increase in Neenah's tax rate for next year.

City Clerk H. S. Zemlock today received the state and county assessments. This year's assessment amounted to $104,256.41. The tax this year was $25 per $1,000.

The city council will hold an informal meeting Saturday afternoon at the city hall to discuss the budget, and Monday evening at a special meeting the budget will be adopted and the tax rate set.

Outside of special charges, such as poor relief, old age assistance and real estate charged back to the city, the state and county tax next year will be $99,110.39, while this year's assessment was $96,448.32. The state tax next year will amount to $3,686.06, while this year it was $3,522.07. Special charges, which include charities, for 1939 will be $7,322.80 as compared with $6,153.09 this year.

Minor Changes There will be only a slight increase in the tax for county schools, next year's assessment amounting to $13,733.27, while this year it was $13,609.43. Soldiers relief for next year will decrease, the tax amounting to $2,409.34 as compared with $2,415.87 for this year. All other county taxes for 1939 will total $75,645.18, while last year it was $74,269.93.

In the special charges, which will amount to $4,355.55, poor relief shows a sharp decline, the amount for next year being $804.49 as compared with $1,145.84 for this year. On the other hand, old age assistance will increase next year, the tax amounting to $3,158.25 in comparison to $2,780.65 for this year. The amount charged back to Neenah for real estate next year will be $259.80. There was no such charge for this year.

Because there haven't been large increases in departmental budgets for 1939, it is not expected that the rate for next year will exceed the 25-mill assessment for 1938.

7 Marriages Reported In Neenah Last Month

Neenah—There was a slight increase in the number of marriages during November as compared with the preceding month and the number of births and deaths in Neenah remained the same, according to the vital statistics report issued today by Dr. Frank O. Brunckhorst, city health officer.

There were 27 births last month and there were 10 deaths. Seven marriages were recorded in November as compared with four during October.

Conservationists at Meeting in Oshkosh

Neenah—Three Neenah conservationists, Emery Rickard and Warren Tipler, representing the Twin City Rod and Gun club, and Armin Gerhardt, representing the Neenah High school Conservation club, attended a meeting of Winnebago county conservation clubs Wednesday evening at Oshkosh. The conservationists met with Wardens Albert F. Dunham and A. C. Chase to discuss plans for the winter feeding program for game birds in this area.

17 Students Competing In Club Essay Contest

Neenah—Seventeen Neenah High school students, contestants in the Neenah Rotary club essay contest, today submitted their essays to Ivan Williams, Neenah High school history teacher, who is in charge of the contest. A club committee will judge the essays over the weekend, and the three winners will be announced next week.

The three winners of the contest will be guests of the Rotary club at the noon meeting, Thursday, when they will read their prize essays.

Menasha Wooden Ware to Curtail Operations in Menasha Factory; Will Open Plant at Ladysmith

Menasha—The Menasha Wooden Ware, the oldest industrial plant in the Fox River valley, which at one time employed nearly 1,000 men, will curtail operation of its Menasha plant to a minimum with the transfer of machinery and the opening of a plant at Ladysmith, Wis., according to Mowry Smith, president of the company.

The change will take effect Jan. 1 after which only the corrugated box department and the butter tub manufacturing department will continue in operation here. From 75 to 100 men will continue to be employed by the Wooden Ware in Menasha.

The handle and pail departments of the plant will be transferred to Ladysmith where the city has offered an option to purchase. The transfer of the machinery to the new location will be gradual. About 75 men will be employed at Ladysmith. The company has given its present employees the option of transferring to Ladysmith also.

Will Be Transferred John McAndrews, who was personnel manager of the plant here, will be transferred to Ladysmith where he will be the plant manager, according to Mr. Smith. Otto Beator will be the plant superintendent at Ladysmith. He was superintendent of the pail department in Menasha. Officials of the company returned from Ladysmith Thursday after completing arrangements for the transfer.

The toy department will be closed down completely after finishing production for the Christmas season. A retail department of the Wooden Ware has been opened in the old Trades and Labor building on Main street. The products are to be sold out entirely.

A small building has been moved to a spur track off Washington street where the manufacture of butter tubs will be continued. The company started the manufacture of butter tubs made from Sitka spruce from the Pacific coast in 1921. Production reached a maximum of 2,000,000 tubs annually.

The manufacture of corrugated boxes, which also will be continued in Menasha, was started by the company in 1927 when the management felt that certain types of wooden containers would be supplanted by paper boxes. A maximum of 292 men were employed in the departments of the Menasha plant during the last year although at one time nearly 1,000 men were employed by the company in Menasha.

Started in 1849 The Menasha Wooden Ware corporation was started in 1849 by three men named Beckwith, Sanford and Billings. They started their pail-making shop on the site of the present factory. Their investment did not exceed $1,000 with the three men doing all of the work from cutting the logs into staves and heading to the complete pail. A year later the shop was sold to three others, Keyes, Wolcott and Rice.

Elisha D. Smith came to Menasha in 1850 and embarked in the mercantile business at a store where Hotel Menasha now stands. In 1852 he purchased the Wooden Ware plant with its one lathe for $1,200. The first 10 years were difficult for the company and the plant once was burned out.

When the railroad came to Menasha, new machinery was installed and more modern methods of manufacture were adopted. The output of the factory was increased to include tubs, barrels, kegs and many other varieties of wooden containers.

At the height of its prosperity the company employed nearly 2,000 men and had subsidiary sawmills and plants. The subsidiaries were located at Tacoma, Wash.; Fargo, N. D.; Fort Dodge, Iowa; Superior, Neb.; Springfield, Mo.; Watertown, S. D.; Mankato, Minn.; Menomonee, Wis.; Oklahoma City, Okla.; Omaha, Neb.; St. Paul and Sauk Center, Minn.; Sioux City and Sumner, Iowa, and elsewhere. Large tracts of timberland were owned in Wisconsin, northern Michigan, Minnesota, Idaho, Washington, Oregon, New Mexico and Canada.

The production was boosted from 400 pails per day to 10,000 wood containers every 24 hours. During the years it was necessary to discard one kind of package after another as the demand changed or ceased entirely. The company then entered the toy field as well as furniture and handles. At present not one type of container is manufactured that was turned out 40 years ago. At one time there were 45 lathes busy turning out materials for pails, tubs and barrels.

Several years ago a strike shut down operations of the plant for a month. Since that time various departments have been closed as operations were curtailed. The co-operation department finally was closed Sept. 1 of this year while the heading department was closed only a week ago.

After Elisha D. Smith had operated the plant, he was joined by his sons, Charles R. and Henry S., who continued to operate the plant after his death. Two sons of Charles R. Smith are now active in managing the business. They are Mowry Smith and Carlton Smith. Mrs. Donald C. Shepard, a daughter of Charles R. Smith, also is a stockholder. Henry S. Smith, who resides in California now, still is a director of the company.

The present officers of the concern are Mowry Smith, president; Donald C. Shepard, Donald Turner, and Carlton R. Smith, company president; John O. Schmeider, secretary; and Jacob Liebl, treasurer.

Capacity Crowd to Hear Harry Stuhldreher At Valley Inn

Neenah—A capacity crowd of 200 persons is expected to attend the annual Neenah High school all-athletic banquet at 6:30 tonight at the Valley Inn to hear Harry Stuhldreher, athletic director and head football coach at the University of Wisconsin, who will be the guest speaker.

Besides his talk, the former quarterback of Notre Dame's football team, Stuhldreher probably will show motion pictures of a Wisconsin grid game. The movie probably will be the one taken of the Wisconsin-Northwestern clash.

It is also expected that Stuhldreher will be accompanied by some members of his football squad.

S. F. Shattuck, vice president of the Kimberly-Clark corporation, will act as toastmaster at the banquet. The banquet is open to the public, and letter winners in high school sports will be guests.

Coach George Christoph, Neenah High school grid mentor, will announce the name of the 1939 grid captain-elect, and members of the football team will be awarded letters by their coach.

Two committees are in charge of the banquet. Principal J. H. Holzman is chairman of the faculty committee, and he is assisted by Ole Jorgensen, basketball and track coach, and Christoph, football and wrestling coach. Lynn Werner is chairman of the student committee, and he is assisted by Burton Halverson and Carlton Brunckhorst.

Cleopatra and Mark Antony
V--END OF THE STORY
There is an old saying, "He who conquers himself is greater than he who conquers nations." Mark Antony had conquered nations, but he did not conquer himself. The habit of drinking wine grew upon him so strongly that it became his master. When Octavian moved to attack him, he did not have the sharp wit of the old Antony.

The main battle took place on the Mediterranean sea, near the coast of Greece. Both Antony and Cleopatra were there with their fleets, but the battle was lost. Across the sea to Egypt they fled, and for a time they felt fairly safe in Alexandria, the Egyptian capital. Then Octavian came with his soldiers, and laid siege to the city.

Thousands of Antony's cavalymen deserted to the enemy, and Antony felt that his cause was lost. False news was sent to him that Cleopatra had taken her own life, and in his despair he fell on his sword.

When Cleopatra heard that Antony was badly wounded, but not dead, she sent to have him brought to the tomb, or mausoleum, where she had fled. Antony was still alive when he reached the tomb. With his last words he talked to the queen--whom he loved dearly--about ways in which she might save herself.

After the death of Antony, Cleopatra had a meeting with Octavian. So far as she could foretell his plans, Octavian was going to take her to Rome and have her march as a prisoner in his triumph. Then, she believed, he would have her put to death. Asking for an hour to visit the tomb where Antony lay dead, Cleopatra made ready to die by her own act. We are told that a servant brought her a basket of figs, and that hidden amid the figs was an asp, a small but deadly serpent.

The queen, now 38 years of age, must have shuddered as the asp sank its fangs into her flesh. When Roman soldiers entered the tomb to learn why she had not come forth, they found her dead. So ended a story of love and war, a story Shakespeare has told in one of his famous plays, "Antony and Cleopatra."

Octavian, the conqueror, now was master of the Roman world, with full power over Egypt, as well as Greece, Syria, Spain, Gaul, and Britain. In history, Octavian is best known as Augustus.

Corn in Abrupt Climb on Grain Mart at Chicago

Unique Situation for This Time of Year Is Experienced

Chicago — (P) — Corn climbed briskly 1½ cents a bushel here today, whereas wheat failed to hold fractional gains.

United States government loans on a vast amount of corn, together with shortage of Argentine supplies, have brought about a unique situation for this time of year. Scarcity of domestic receipts has resulted, as well as increasing export trade, including today's purchases of about 500,000 bushels.

Receipts were: Wheat 24 cars, corn 78, oats 38.

At the close, Chicago corn futures were 1½ higher compared with yesterday's finish, Dec. 5½-1½. May 53½-1½, wheat unchanged to 1 cent lower, Dec. 64½-1½, May 67½-1½, and oats 1½ up.

Approval of Dam Opens Way to Test Waterpower Right

Federal Government Questions Right to Dam Wisconsin River

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—The construction of a hydroelectric plant at the site of the Tomahawk dam on the Wisconsin river by the Wisconsin Public service corporation at a cost of about $500,000, which has been approved by the Wisconsin public service commission, will probably become a test case of state rights in an action now pending before the federal power commission, according to Calmer Browy, director of the state commission.

The Wisconsin commission authorized the largest hydroelectric development in the last two years in the improvement by the Wisconsin public service corporation of the Grandfather Falls hydro plant on the Wisconsin river at a cost of $1,709,934, and has also approved the purchase of the Tomahawk dam for the purpose of rebuilding and construction of a new hydro plant.

The federal commission makes no claim, explains Browy, that the Wisconsin river is commercially navigable up to Tomahawk dam, but contends that nevertheless the river at that point and the dam are subject to the jurisdiction of the federal power commission because construction of the dam would affect navigation in the lower Wisconsin river and the Mississippi river which are commercially navigable and subject to federal supervision.

"Should this contention be upheld by the courts," says the state commission director, "the state of Wisconsin's right to recapture the hydroelectric development might be endangered. The Wisconsin commission asserts that the Tomahawk dam and the upper Wisconsin river are subject only to the jurisdiction of the state."

The commission also reported today that many dams were built in Wisconsin during the last two years with the aid of federal funds. In nine central counties approximately 250 small dams located mostly in drainage districts were built at a cost of $750,000. The dams are a part of a program to restore the
